

President Attacks Humphrey Jobs Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, who has been predicting the Democrats will nominate Sen. Hubert Humphrey for president this year, today lambasted a key Humphrey jobs bill as "dangerously deceptive" and an "election-year boondoggle."

Ford, in a speech prepared for the 64th annual convention of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, also vowed to check the increase in government spending "if it takes all summer and more and more vetoes."

He singled out a bill co-sponsored by Humphrey and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., which would set a national target of 3 per cent unemployment within four years and guarantee jobs — government jobs if necessary — to all adults willing to work.

The bill has been embraced by many leading Democrats. Ford said it is one that "I am against."

Humphrey, from Minnesota, is willing to run as the Democrat's presidential candidate, but has declined to campaign for the nomination.

In his speech, Ford called the Humphrey-Hawkins bill a "vast election-year boondoggle" and said the measure would "get the federal government deeper and deeper into social and economic planning on a national scale unprecedented in all our history."

Citing recent encouraging economic statistics, Ford told the audience that in the past year, his administration had turned around the worst recession in 40 years. "We are assembled this spring in the full surge of recovery."

Now, Ford said "we face a tougher test" — that of sustaining the economic recovery and insuring stable growth without starting another cycle of inflationary boom that could lead to another recession.

He said the dread shoals of unemployment "still loom and creation of an economic climate in which every American who wants to work can have a job is a primary concern."

But he added: "Sometimes senators and congressmen seem to think they can abolish unemployment by passing new laws, such as the dangerously deceptive Humphrey-Hawkins bill." He called it "a classic example of the way the misguided majority in recent congresses reacts. Anything that seems wrong with the economy, the federal government must rush in and fix, mainly by spending more billions of dollars."

Assembly Hopes To Wrap Up Session

Solons Push Utility Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate-House conferees were called back into session today to make another effort to compromise on a long debated bill revising Ohio's utility rate-making formula.

It was the first development in a four-day drive to bring down the curtain on the legislature's current session, except for a three-day meeting in June to clean up final business and to act on possible gubernatorial vetoes.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, expressed confidence that the six-member conference committee can agree on the utility bill to permit final action before Thursday's adjournment.

However Riffe mentioned that if the committee fails to act by Tuesday, he would urge that the two chambers appoint a second committee of conference — the standard procedure when an initial committee deadlocks.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, is chairman of the Senate-House panel which held three meetings last week but did little more than review provisions of the complicated bill.

The panel was named after Senate sponsors rejected House amendments as being overly favorable to utility lobbyists, and the initial deliberations indicated neither side was going to move from its position easily.

A key issue as the bill went into the committee was whether utilities should be permitted to include in their rate bases the funds already invested in construction work not completed. Sen. John T. McCormack, D-31 Euclid, the bill's chief sponsor, claims the House-inserted provision would result in the addition of millions of dollars annually to the bills of utility consumers and thereby subvert the purpose of his legislation.

McCormack, a conference committee member, said he will insist that the panel return to the Senate version. It had as its major thrust requiring utilities to build their rate base around the original cost of its plants and equipment and repealing the existing law that allows them to use current estimated replacement costs.

House conferees, including Rep.

William E. Hinig, D-96 New Philadelphia, fumed at McCormack's charge that the House yielded to lobby pressure in adopting the so-called "construction work in progress" amendment. McCormack has apologized for the statement.

Hinig and the others warned that the legislature, in its haste, may be moving in to restrict utility revenues to the point they will be unable to provide utility needs of Ohioans in the future.

A lobbyist for Toledo Edison Co. who has been monitoring the bill's progress, Leon Shaffer, said that to take away the existing formula allowing current replacement costs without putting back the construction work allowance would deprive electrical utilities of "nearly half" of their current rate base.

The rate base consists of those things that may be cited as cost of doing business by Ohio's telephone, electrical, and natural gas utilities when they appear before the Public Utilities Commission with a rate increase request.

Otherwise Riffe said he hoped but was not sure that the legislature can (Continued on Page 2)

Wintry Air Stages Brief Comeback

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter weather was attempting a brief comeback today as heavy snow warnings continued in some areas of Montana and in the mountains and northwest sections of Colorado.

A winter storm warning was posted in Utah, and livestock warnings were up in southeast Montana, Wyoming, western Colorado and parts of Nevada.

The wintry weather was not restricted to the West. Snow fell Sunday in the Chicago area with several inches accumulating in some of the suburbs. Frost warnings were posted in sections of Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois. A freeze warning was posted in lower Michigan.

Rain and snow were scattered over much of the northern and central sections of both the Rocky Mountains and the intermountain regions. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over much of the Atlantic coast region and into the Ohio Valley where some drizzle and snow also was reported. Drizzle was widespread over the central Appalachians.

Skies were clear early today through the upper Mississippi Valley into the central and southern plains and Missouri, as well as over much of California and Arizona.

Brisk northerly winds were causing high waves to batter the southern shores of Lakes Michigan, Erie and Ontario with lake shore warnings posted in many areas.

Strong gusty winds were expected to continue through the day over the mountains and deserts of Southern California where travelers advisories were in effect.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 25 at Duluth, Minn., to 78 at Blythe, Calif.

PRACTICE FIRE — Members of the Harrison Twp. Fire Department work to extinguish a fire they set Sunday in a practice drill called by Chief Rolland Featheringham. The fire destroyed an abandoned building off the Ashville-Fairfield Road. Things went smoothly, according to the chief, who allowed his men to practice new fire fighting procedures and methods.

Ex-Con Dies After Rampage

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — As he forged a bloody trail through Georgia and Florida, an ex-convict snorted cocaine and bragged about his shooting and kidnap rampage that left three dead and 13 wounded. He ended the saga by killing himself, authorities say.

"When he talked about all those people being dead, he would laugh about it," said Susie Critton, a hostage who escaped unharmed. "He was smiling about it like he was glad. He had no regrets. He just kept talking and sniffing the cocaine."

Moses Pearson Jr., 31, apparently was angry at being cheated in a cocaine deal when he started the crime spree in his hometown of Jacksonville, Fla., on Saturday night, authorities said. He left two men dead there and six wounded.

Then he fled north into Georgia, killing a third man and wounding seven others.

Along the way, he abducted six women who escaped unharmed — three who drove him into Georgia and a Bay Village, Ohio, woman and her two teenage daughters, abducted on a Georgia highway.

Pearson began his rampage with three shootings within a 30-minute span in north Jacksonville, police spokesman Mike Gould said. At all three locations he demanded money.

"Robbery was at least a partial motive, but we feel there's a strong possibility of a drug tie-in in all those cases. Either he was ripped off or had been ripped off in the past," Gould said. "We know he had an argument with some of these people."

Gould said Pearson shot and killed Horace Fallen, the manager of a used car lot, in Fallen's office. Two others there were wounded. Gould said investigators believe a cocaine deal was the source of "bad blood" between Pearson and Fallen.

As authorities reconstructed Pearson's wild odyssey, he then went to a roadside wig shop where he shot and killed the manager, George Quarles, 52, who had sworn out warrants for Pearson after a robbery at the shop last week.

After wounding three persons at the nearby home of a woman who worked in the wig shop, authorities said, Pearson abandoned his car at a drive-in liquor store and abducted Mrs. Critton and Anita Cockfield, 22, and her sister Sharon, 18.

Pearson forced the women to drive him to a wooded area where he picked up a suitcase filled with money, two other guns and a change of clothes. Then they drove north to Georgia.

At a truck stop in Cordele, Ga., 170 miles north of Jacksonville, the four went inside for coffee, Mrs. Critton said. When Pearson allowed Sharon Cockfield to go to the bathroom, she managed to tell a waitress about the abduction.

When police arrived, Pearson wounded two deputies and two bystanders. The sisters escaped, but Pearson kept Mrs. Critton as he sped away.

In Pinehurst, 20 miles north of Cordele on Interstate 75, Pearson tried to rob a service station and, shooting wildly, killed attendant George Griffin Jr., authorities said. During the shooting, Mrs. Critton escaped.

A short time later, Pearson wounded another service station attendant in a robbery attempt on the highway north of Pinehurst.

Still driving north on I-75, authorities said, Pearson rammed into the rear of the car of the Leslie Janda family, heading home to Ohio after a Florida vacation. Pearson shot Janda in the arm, commandeered the car and abducted Mrs. Janda and their two teenage daughters.

"Sometimes he was nice to us," Jodee Janda, 16, said later. "But he kept talking about how it's a white man's world and a black man can't even enjoy the birds, the trees and the sunshine."

But Carl Chappell, an agent for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, said there was "nothing to indicate any racial angle at all" for Pearson, who was black. Chappell said the victims included both blacks and whites and "it wouldn't have mattered what color you were."

Janda said he flagged down a truck driver with a citizen's band radio who called police. Police set up a roadblock (Continued on Page 17)

Government Makes Effort To Keep Spy Costs Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is making a last-ditch effort to convince the Senate intelligence committee not to reveal how much the nation spends on spying.

CIA Director George Bush was scheduled to appear before the committee at a closed meeting today to argue that disclosure of the intelligence budget would be harmful to national security.

The committee already has voted 8 to 3 to include the budget figure in its report on foreign and military intelligence activities scheduled to be released today.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi also was expected to meet with the committee in what one source said was an attempt to alter that panel's recommendations that call for stiff, new restrictions on electronic surveillance. Those recommendations, which this source said would permit domestic wiretaps only in cases involving criminal conduct, are expected to be made public later this week as part of a separate committee report on domestic intelligence operations.

Bush's appearance was arranged in response to a letter President Ford sent to Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, last week urging that the intelligence budget be kept secret.

However, committee members said there was little chance Bush would succeed in persuading the panel to reverse its vote.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., chairman of the subcommittee which prepared the foreign intelligence report, said Sunday that administration officials already have presented the arguments against disclosing the budget figure but "they have not been persuasive."

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., one of three Republicans on the committee to vote against releasing the budget figure, said, "I think it unlikely the vote will be turned around."

The figure which the committee has voted to release includes the fiscal year 1976 budgets for the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and satellite reconnaissance programs.

Committee members have argued that disclosure of the figure is required by the Constitution, while administration officials maintain its revelation would give valuable intelligence to enemy spy agencies.

Unofficial estimates have put the U.S. intelligence budget at approximately $4 billion annually.

Vegetables Should Be Protected

Tomatoes, beans, and peppers are the vegetables which have the worst chance of surviving tonight's expected freeze, while strawberries, already riddled by earlier frosts, could be depleted even more, according to Brent Rhoads, owner of Rhoads Farm Market.

A high pressure ridge, which is blowing cold air from Canada, is responsible for the unseasonably cold weather, according to the National Weather Service. NWS issued the freeze warning to tonight, saying that temperatures are expected to plummet to the upper 20s.

Cauliflower, brussels sprouts, cabbage, peas, radishes, lettuce, onions, beets, potatoes sweet and field corn, and most all other varieties of vegetables can withstand low temperatures in the mid 20s, Rhoads said. Temperatures in the 28 to 30 degree range would hurt early and late strawberries, while most fruit trees could stand temperatures as low as 28 degrees.

Rhoads suggests that home gardeners cover their susceptible vegetable and strawberry plants with paper bags. The bags should be placed on flanged ends to keep them in place.

Plastic or glass coverings should not be used, he said, because they tend to draw the cold.

Another variable that "could save us," Rhoads said, is wind movement. "Crops could survive temperatures as low as 28 degrees," he said, "if it's windy, because they don't tend to freeze as quickly."

The NWS predicts northly winds of about 10 miles an hour tonight.

Presidential Hopefuls Bid For Votes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is being "absolutely ridiculous" when he blames unemployment in the North on lower wages paid workers in the South.

"I don't think it's fair to say that we have unemployment in Pennsylvania because the South has cheap labor or right-to-work laws," Carter said Sunday on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program.

"To blame the unemployment in Pennsylvania on right-to-work laws that have been there ever since Harry Truman's day I think is absolutely ridiculous," Carter said.

The program featured Carter, Jackson and three other contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination — Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. All but Church are on the ballot for Tuesday's primary election in Pennsylvania.

As the Democrats focused their attention on Pennsylvania, President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, battling for the Republican nomination, prepared for more work in Texas, where voting is May 1.

Ford is scheduled to campaign in Texas Tuesday through Thursday, and Reagan is due there Thursday.

Weather

Variable cloudy and unseasonably cold today, tonight, and Tuesday with a freeze warning posted for tonight. High today should reach the upper 40s with a 30 per cent chance of rain or snow flurries; low tonight should drop to the upper 20s with only a 10 per cent chance of precipitation; high Tuesday should reach the low 50s with a 10 per cent chance of rain. High Saturday was 83 and the low was 59. High Sunday was 66 and the low was 37.

Reagan picked up support over the weekend from Republicans in four states, including South Carolina, where he was assured of 26 of the state's 36 GOP national convention delegates.

South Carolina's state Republican convention gave four delegates to Ford, and six were not committed to any candidate.

The challenger also won backing in Oklahoma, Missouri and Arizona, while Minnesota's Republicans favored the President in partial returns from GOP district meetings.

Jackson, with strong backing from Pennsylvania's labor leaders, has argued in campaigning for the state's primary that Northern jobs have been lost to Southern states with right-to-work laws, among them Georgia.

The so-called "right-to-work" laws prohibit union shops, and Jackson maintained that this encourages lower pay and thus flight by industry to the South. He didn't cite specific differences in pay.

Udall, Jackson and Carter anguished, meanwhile, over the halt in distribution of federal matching money that has left their campaigns short of funds.

Jackson and Udall blamed President Ford, while Carter, admitting he, too, would like to hang the problem on Ford, faulted Congress for not swiftly reviving the federal campaign law knocked down by the Supreme Court.

The high court said the Federal Election Commission, which handled distribution of the matching money, was unconstitutionally comprised. Congress did not reconstitute the commission by a deadline set by the Supreme Court, and distribution of the matching money was stopped.

"It's really unfair, and Gerald Ford's aiding and abetting the whole thing," Udall said. "I can't get the (Continued on Page 20)

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — To hold back a sea of red ink, Ohio cities are going to have to cut inefficient programs and look to the state and federal governments for aid, Toledo finance director Jack Stewart says.

Stewart addressed a meeting Saturday of Ohio Associated Press Broadcasters, who also heard Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, call for a reordering of defense spending priorities to favor the Navy.

Taft also said he is working to win location of another uranium enrichment plant next to the present one in southern Ohio. He said the project could involve $2 billion for the region.

The senator also said he believes Lima will be the site of a new Army tank development program dubbed the XM-1.

Stewart said that to maintain the quality of urban life, not to mention improve it, cities must become more innovative and evaluate programs. "If they're not effective, do away with them," he told an Ohio Associated Press Broadcasters meeting.

A short-term solution, Stewart said, is a hike in the city income tax, the major source of revenue for Toledo and most Ohio cities. He said Toledo will be asking voters for a .5 per cent increase in the local 1.5 per cent income tax. Passage would mean about $12 million a year for the city.

Federal revenue sharing "with no strings attached" is a good way to solve local problems, Stewart said.

Cleveland finance director Warren D. Riebe, who joined Stewart on a panel discussing city finances, said all cities are faced with problems resulting from inflation, but he said there probably will not be a New York City in Ohio.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved broadly lower today, weakened by concern that a tighter money policy might bring on a new rise in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined more than four points at the opening. Losers topped gainers by a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In the closing sessions last week, stock traders watched with increasing concern as the Federal Reserve bank signalled by its actions in the money market that it may be moving to cool the recent sharp increase in the nation's money supply.

Apparently taking its cue from those actions, Citibank Friday failed to lower its prime lending rate from the present 6 1/2 per cent, although under its formula it could have.

This has left stock investors braced for a possible new rise in various interest rates, analysts said, a development that almost always tends to weaken stock prices.

Among today's prices, General Electric fell 3/4 to 54 1/2, Pfizer was off a point at 27 1/2, and International Telephone & Telegraph dipped 1/2 to 26 1/2.

On Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.00 to 1,000.71, ending the week with a net gain of 20.23 points.

Congress Faces
President's Vetoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is back from its spring recess with a common four-letter word on its mind: veto.

Regarding two bills up for action this week, President Ford has criticized one and said he would veto the other if it is passed. In addition, votes probably will come up next week on whether to override Ford's vetoes of two other measures.

On the Senate calendar today was a bill that would limit grain inspection at U.S. ports to federal employees and state inspectors approved by the Agriculture Department.

In a speech two weeks ago in El Paso, Tex., Ford said he definitely would veto the bill prompted by disclosures of widespread corruption and bribery among grain inspectors employed by private firms.

Action is expected later in the week in the House and Senate on a compromise bill restructuring the Federal Election Commission. No one objects to the restructuring to comply with a Supreme Court order requiring that all members of the commission be presidential appointees, but the bill also includes other changes in the election laws which Republicans have said the President finds objectionable.

Following a Supreme Court decision, the commission lost its authority to disburse campaign funds to presidential candidates. Seven candidates have asked the court to permit the commission to resume disbursing money while action to change the law continues.

In other action on Capitol Hill this week, the House may act on both the foreign aid authorization and appropriations bills.

Ford also has threatened to veto the appropriation bill if Congress adds more aid to Israel than he requested.

The House also is scheduled to take up the congressional budget resolution, part of the new process by which Congress sets its own budget standards to parallel those submitted by the executive branch.

The budget resolution passed by the Senate just before the recess set a $412.6 billion limit on spending for the 1977 fiscal year.

The two bills Ford vetoed before the recess were a measure to give states $125 million to meet new federal standards for day-care centers, and amendments to the Hatch Act to free federal employees to engage in partisan political activity.

The vote on the day-care center veto is expected to be close. Backers of the Hatch Act revisions are given little chance of being able to muster the two-thirds margins in the House and Senate needed to override Ford's veto of that measure.

Athens Film Chief
Sees Festival Growth

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The view from Giulio Scialinger's office window on the Ohio University campus is limited to about 12 feet because of the building next door, but his vision for the Athens International Film Festival spans continents.

"Our five-year plan has been to become one of the major film festivals in the country," says Scialinger, 27, an Ohio University graduate student who codirects the festival with Shawn Papi, an OU film graduate. "This is our third international festival, and we're getting there."

"There's no reason even a small community like Athens can't attract participants from anywhere," Scialinger says. "And, with our program, we can attract enough people to come here for a week, relax and enjoy seeing some of the finest films available."

This year's program, scheduled through May 1, is expected to have at least 10,000 admissions for the films made by small production companies and independents.

Scialinger, a native of South Africa who has studied film in England as well as the United States, is proud that entries this year come from 26 states and seven foreign countries, including Canada, England, Switzerland, Mexico, Uruguay, Finland, and Hungary.

He's thrilled that Hollywood director Howard Hawks ("Sergeant York," "The Big Sleep" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes") has agreed to participate, and that two Academy Award nominees (the documentary "Arthur and Lillie" and the animation "Sisyphus") will be shown.

Scialinger seems ready to predict that his dream is coming true in only the third year of its existence.

"The biggest thrill in doing something like this," he says, "is when the phone rings and it's a Howard Hawks saying he'll come or a Tony Watts (director of the Thames Film Festival in London) saying he'll be here looking for films for his festival."

"You begin to get the feeling that the festival is important and that it's actually working," Scialinger says.

If this year's program is as successful as Scialinger thinks it will be, he has a store of ideas ready for the future.

"We want to establish a touring film festival which would be sent all over the world representing the films which have appeared on our program," he says. "We have done this on a limited basis in the past, but not on the kind of worldwide scale we want."

In addition, he says, the Athens International Film Festival, by its success, can help attract the attention of major moviemakers.

"Ohio can become a good production area for Hollywood," he says.

Reunified
Vietnam
Closer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese leaders today promised a socialist regime "for the people, by the people and of the people" after election of a National Assembly for a reunified Vietnam.

Broadcasts from the twin Communist capitals of Hanoi and Saigon proclaimed the voting Sunday a success, with 99 per cent of the eligible voters appearing at the polls in Hanoi and similar strong turnouts in Saigon and the provinces.

The voters chose 249 deputies in North Vietnam and 243 in the South. All the candidates were chosen by revolutionary committees. The assembly is expected to be a powerless, rubber-stamp legislature like those in other Communist countries, with real power being retained by a small Communist party group in Hanoi.

The Assembly is to convene within 60 days to adopt a new constitution and ratify the plans for reunification of the country divided in 1954 and wracked by war for three decades. The date for the reunification has not been announced.

Nhan Dan, the official newspaper published in Hanoi and Saigon, said the election proceeded "smoothly and successfully in both parts of Vietnam."

"From today, the people of Vietnam will have a new regime, a regime for the people, by the people and of the people, a regime that will lead Vietnam to prosperity and true socialism," said a commentary from the paper broadcast by Hanoi Radio.

"Official results have not yet been announced, but judging from the lines of eligible voters who jammed ballot booths in both North and South Vietnam, undoubtedly almost all eligible voters cast their votes," Nhan Dan said. "According to preliminary reports, in most constituencies throughout Vietnam voting was completed as early as noon."

Darvon
Restrictions
Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Food and Drug Administration advisory panel has recommended strict controls on Darvon, a frequently prescribed painkiller, because of evidence implicating it in hundreds of deaths from overdoses.

The committee voted 7 to 1 to recommend that Darvon — generically named Propoxyphene — and mixtures containing it, be regulated under the Controlled Substances Act.

Specifically, it advised FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt to require druggists to refill a Darvon prescription no more than five times in six months and suppliers and pharmacists to control inventories to deter possible abuses.

The Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration recommended that step in 1973. If implemented, it would be "the most significant regulatory action" of its kind since codeine was ruled a narcotic decades ago, the Drug Enforcement Administration said.

Legally, physicians would be free to continue prescribing Darvon and products containing it. But the new requirements would alert doctors to the possibility of abuses, said Ernest Caraballo, chairman of the DEA's control committee.

Last year, physicians wrote 16.4 million prescriptions for Darvon and products containing it manufactured by Eli Lilly and Co. of Indianapolis, and an estimated 1.6 million more for similar products made by other manufacturers. Darvon was first marketed in 1957 and, in some years, has been the most widely prescribed drug.

A recent study found deaths involving overdoses of propoxyphene increased from 152 in 1972 to 269 in 1974 in areas with a combined population of 52.6 million.

The surveyed areas account for slightly less than one-quarter of the nation's population. The study was done by the Center for Human Toxicology at the University of Utah and was commissioned by the Lilly firm at the advisory panel's suggestion.

complete work by Thursday on a major bill designed to protect Ohio's homeowners from future increases in property taxes that result from inflation.

That measure was approved by the House several weeks ago but is awaiting action by the Senate Ways and Means Committee. The panel scheduled a meeting for tonight to review a subcommittee's recommendations on the measure.

Riffe said that if final legislative action is not possible this week, and it appeared unlikely due to extensive Senate amendments, the measure could be voted on when the lawmakers return for their planned session June 9 through 11.

The speaker also was uncertain whether there can be final House action this week on a controversial bill requiring lobbyists to make disclosures periodically on funds they are spending to influence legislation.

Riffe said he "didn't get a fair shake" in newspaper stories predicting the measure would fail to pass the House after being sent there by the Senate earlier this month.

The House State Government Committee scheduled hearings on the measure today and Tuesday, and the speaker said he will put it up for a floor vote this week if it emerges from the committee in time.

Riffe, reiterating that the Senate had the bill for "more than a year," said he favors a strengthening of lobby laws and added: "There's going to be a bill, if not this week, then later on this year."

See No Easing
Of Boston Tensions

BOSTON (AP) — City Council President Louise Day Hicks says "violence in Boston isn't going to subside unless there is a moratorium on forced busing."

Mrs. Hicks, one of the leading opponents of the city's court-ordered busing for school integration, said Sunday, "The only way to bring peace to this city is for national, state and local leaders to march on Judge W. Arthur Garrity's court."

Garrity two years ago ordered the city's schools desegregated under a plan which requires the busing of thousands of students.

Jerome B. Winegar takes over today as new headmaster at South Boston High School, citadel of opposition to court-ordered school integration.

City Councilor Christopher A. Iannella, meanwhile, said his proposed 10 p.m. curfew ordinance would bar anyone under 17 from public or private property, without permission of the owner, unless accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

He said he believes "events that have been going on here for the past few weeks, maybe even a year or two" make the ordinance necessary.

In the most recent outbreak of racial violence, separate stoning and beating incidents injured two whites and two blacks and damaged six Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority buses and two trains Saturday night.

The four persons injured bring to at least 20 the number assaulted in racial incidents since April 17. They include a white auto mechanic who lies unconscious in the hospital with brain damage after being dragged from his car and beaten with bricks by a group of blacks.

The city's latest wave of violence began two weeks ago when a black attorney was beaten during an anti-busing demonstration outside City Hall. Theodore Landsmark, 29, suffered a broken nose and facial bruises when a group of whites kicked him on the ground and struck him with a flagstaff bearing an American flag.

THE
LAWYER

About 400 B.C., a citizen of ancient Greece was put to death because of a dream. In the dream he had seen himself killing the emperor. Authorities ruled that no one, asleep or awake, was allowed to think such forbidden thoughts.

Under American law, there is no such thing as a forbidden thought. No one can be punished merely for having mischief in mind. As Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once put it:

"There is no law against a man's intending to commit murder the day after tomorrow."

Of course, intentions do play a vital role in our legal system.

If Motorist A knocks down Pedestrian B, it makes an enormous difference whether he did it with malice aforethought, or on a fleeting impulse, or through simple negligence. Although A's act is the same in each case, his punishment would vary according to the state of his mind.

But without any act, with only an intention however evil, he would have committed no crime.

A striking example arose during wartime. Joseph Malin, a disgruntled American soldier, decided to defect to the enemy. Late one night he set out for enemy lines. But by mistake he arrived at another American camp.

In short order Malin was brought to trial on a charge of high treason. Yet his only act — joining his own troops — was perfectly lawful.

But couldn't he be punished at least for his treasonable intentions? The court said no and set the soldier free.

The incident took place during the Revolutionary War, two centuries ago, and the court's decision was handed down in the third year of this nation's life. It is one more reminder, as we observe another Law Day, that the roots of our freedom run deep.

Steel Demand
To Increase,
Experts Feel

CLEVELAND (AP) — The capital goods market is expected to come out of the doldrums in this year's second half and adds impetus to the already accelerated demand for steel, Industry Week says.

Heavy demand has been present for flat-rolled products, particularly from automakers. And now the trade weekly says demand of boom proportions is developing.

Estimated first-quarter shipments of 22.4 million tons are about one million tons higher than had been expected. Second quarter shipments are expected to reach 25 million tons.

Analysts told the publication that yearly shipments may yet reach about 98 million tons. In March the steel industry attained a 100 million ton-a-year shipping rate, the magazine says.

Steel shipments in March were 8.3 million, the highest monthly total in one year. Shipments are expected to fall to 8 million tons in April but jump back up to 8.5 million tons in May and June.

For the week ended April 17, raw steel production was 2,660,000 net tons. The magazine estimates that for the week ending April 24 raw steel production will be 2,685,000 net tons.

As for foreign steel, the Rev. William Hogan, Fordham University's chief economist, told the publication that steel imports will be between 12 million and 14 million tons.

Domestic steelmakers insist, however, that even at current demand rates they can't attain adequate profit margins without price increases. The magazine says U.S. Steel Corp. may have signaled the start of price hikes with its announcement that effective May 1 it will increase base price for rails $1 per hundred-weight and tubular products by six per cent.

Board OKs
Refugees

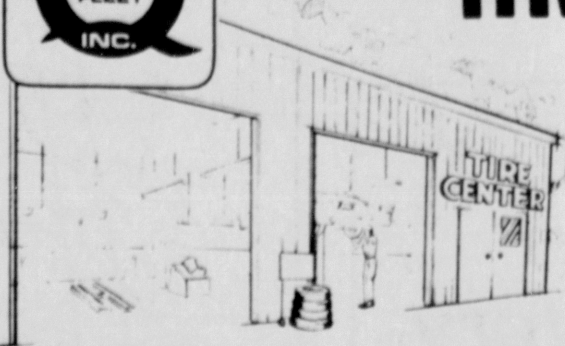

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State-assisted universities may now accept political refugees after one year as resident students, under a new rule adopted by the Board of Regents.

The decision Friday could affect as many as 3,000 Vietnamese refugees who faced a three-year wait compared to the one-year residency requirement before waiving out-of-state fees for other non-Ohioans.

State-assisted colleges and universities will now be able to enroll Vietnamese refugees as full time equivalency students, eligible for state aid, possibly by next fall.

About 178 Vietnamese are attending Ohio colleges, a spokesman for Catholic Charities of Columbus said. Many are helped by federal grants.

By a 7-1 vote, the regents approved release of $500,000 of a special $1 million appropriation for Ohio University, where declining enrollments in recent years have caused a financial strain.

A Page Of Opinion

$6 Million Man

In a world of seemingly increasing depersonalization, some people cower in the thought they are not worth much. And some scientists, with more time than sense on their hands, try to prove it by calculating what the chemical compounds of the human body might be worth on the commodity market.

Generally, they come up with a value of about 98 cents. When biochemist Harold J. Morowitz of Yale University came across such a claim, he decided it was time to do some research. Shunning the usual human shopping list of such raw materials as air, water, salt, coal, lime, etc., Morowitz separated the components into their sophisticated atomic state.

In an article in the journal Hospital Practice, Morowitz listed the magic ingredients and their contemporary prices: Hemoglobin, $285 a gram; acetate kinase, $8,860 a gram; insulin, $47.50 a gram; a follicle-stimulating hormone, $8 million a gram and so on down a long list.

The average value of all the ingredients, Morowitz calculated, was $254.54 per gram of the average human. Converting his own weight (168 pounds) to 79,364 grams, reducing that weight by 68 per cent for water content and multiplying by the average value per gram, Morowitz figured his own body at the chemical store check-out counter would be worth $6,000,015.44.

That doesn't include anything for the intricate process of putting it all together. Not a bad boost for tired egos.

Lone Eagle

By JIM BISHOP

He was tall and thin and shy. He was also one thing he didn't want to be — America's all-time hero. No one, not even George Washington, was idolized as Captain Charles Lindbergh was when he flew from New York to Paris alone.

It was the feat of an idiot. The single-engine Ryan monoplane was not designed to cross a turbulent sea. Extra gasoline tanks blocked the pilot's view so that he could not see where he was going. He bought a periscope for looking over the tanks, and a small compass.

Lindbergh remained awake for 33 and one-half hours and landed at Le Bourget field. Modestly, the airmail pilot said "We" made it. Overnight, the unknown pilot took the world's attention away from itself. The flight did not advance the cause of aviation.

It gave everybody someone to love. President Coolidge sent a cruiser to bring him home. In June, 1927, politicians suggested running Lindbergh for president. There were ticker-tape parades, and millions of men shouted themselves hoarse as the Lone Eagle turned on his boyish grin.

He was promoted to colonel. Newer, faster planes were given to him. He flew to Mexico. There he met Ambassador Dwight Morrow, and there Lindbergh met Mr. Morrow's daughters.

He married Anne, a sensitive poetic girl. The whole world hugged the romance to itself. Everything he did, everything he said, became momentous. Statesmen pinned medals on his skinny chest until he became stooped and silent.

Lindbergh desired one thing above all others — to be alone. This made him even more important to all newspapers. Photographers with telescopic lenses hid in canvas-covered trucks trying to steal one more photo of the Lone Eagle.

He and Anne fled to the Sourland Mountains of New Jersey. They built a white house in the woods. They had a baby boy. It made headlines. The hero began to fear the worshippers. He could not take a walk, drive a car, fly a plane or hold a conversation without having it reported in the press. Lindbergh was the hottest copy the world had known.

They kidnapped his baby. And killed it. They made a hippodrome of the murder trial in Flemington, N.J. It seemed fitting, almost glorious, that a German carpenter with a baby of his own would die for the crime.

There was no hiding place for Lindbergh and Anne. They exiled themselves to England. Cameras and notebooks followed them. Juan Trippe offered Lindbergh a job on the board of directors of Pan-American Airways. Lindbergh accepted, on condition that anything he said would not leave the boardroom.

The hero began to stumble. In Germany, the Nazis fawned on him, and showed him their advanced Messerschmitt designs. He warned France and England not to go to war with Germany — they would lose.

He came home to front for the isolationists — America First. They preached, "Let Europe reduce itself to ashes — the U.S. must not go to war." President Roosevelt despised this hero of all heroes. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, Lindbergh requested active duty. His bid was declined.

Henry Ford hired him to help design and test fly bombers. Secretly, Lindbergh flew to the far Pacific and flew missions with younger men. His hair was thinning, his face was lined with fatigue.

Anne had other babies, but no one seemed to notice. Some called her husband a Nazi. He wasn't. Lindbergh was politically naive, a gleaming instrument to be used as a cutting edge by the wrong people.

One man continued to watch the Lone Eagle. Leonard Mosley, a young Englishman, had been a reporter with me on a New York newspaper. He kept meticulous notes on Lindbergh for 40 years. This year he has published his "Lindbergh, A Biography." It's a sad story of a man whose sole ambition was to fly the empty skies alone.

In 1973, the old man did a strange thing. He began to haunt the Smithsonian Institute, pretending to study exhibits as he glanced up at his old Ryan monoplane, hanging by wires from the ceiling.

The next year, doctors told Lindbergh he was about to die. He had lymphatic cancer. He and Anne built a house on a lonely eminence on the island of Maui. Lindbergh said farewell to his two daughters, his three sons.

Secretly, he and Anne flew to the island. The hero worked on his will. He assigned local carpenters to hammer out a wooden coffin. His wife was asked to bury him in a khaki shirt and slacks.

The hero lapsed into a coma. He died August 26, 1974. The world press was surprised. They hadn't known he was sick.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For at least two months the stock market has moved within only narrow boundaries — between roughly 960 and 1,010 points on the Dow Jones industrial average — and many an investor is getting a bit fidgety.

Investors always feel better when the market is headed in one direction or another, because then the momentum of the market supplies its own forecast of the future. It's the turns that are tough to call.

At the moment you can take your pick of direction, as you always can; and equally so, you can take your pick of forecasts too, as you often can. There seems to be no clear-cut consensus, no conviction, no direction offered.

The nearest thing to a typical forecast is this: over the long term the market will continue to advance, reaching new highs on the industrial average by the year's end, but in the meantime there will be a correction.

That correction, which is a euphemism for decline, is variously forecast to range from 10 per cent to 20 per cent and to occur in almost any month, probably in May or June.

Note the neatly trimmed hedge: The market will fall, but it will rise.

In the meantime, the market is very much like an ambitious middle-level management man whose career has been stalled. He's convinced he has the goods, but he fears there is too much in life he cannot control.

A person or a market so stalled tends to become neurotic — to look for reasons, to invent them. There must be logical explanation, both manager and investor say. But maybe there isn't.

At the moment you have scores of analysts trying to figure out what the Federal Reserve is up to. Like witch doctors studying a pile of bones, they examine and dissect monetary figures seeking a pattern, a signal, an omen.

It does no good to attempt calming the analysts. It does no good to point out that maybe even the Fed doesn't know what it's going to do. The market needs information, no matter how thin or distorted.

Another big worry is about what the insiders are up to. Studies have shown that a good many corporate executives have been sellers of late. Do they know something? If so, what is it they know?

And what is the market likely to do with that Edson Gould forecast overhanging it. Gould, a highly respected forecaster, believes prices might be headed for a fall, perhaps to below 900 points on the Dow Jones industrial average.

There are a lot of other worries too. Why aren't corporations putting more money into expansion? Why are so many second-and third-tier companies unable to attract attention to their shares? Why aren't individual investors, in contrast to institutions, more active than they have been?

All these doubts, fears and questions will disappear from consideration as soon as the market begins moving. But, stalled as it is, it seeks any explanations, even implausible ones.

John Wayne Honored

CHICAGO (AP) — Movie star John Wayne and Mayor Richard J. Daley — both known for shooting from the hip — had nothing but kind words for each other when the actor rode into town to accept an award.

His Honor, declaring Friday "John Wayne Day in Chicago," praised the actor in a City Hall ceremony for "the fine entertainment he has provided in the years of depicting life in our country."

Wayne noted in turn that, "A city reflects the attitude of its people, and its people reflect the attitude of its leadership."

"And for the last 20 years, you've had a man who's not afraid to speak his mind," he told Chicagoans. The actor was in town to accept an award from the Notre Dame Club of Chicago as entertainer of the year.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, April 26, the 117th day of 1976. There are 249 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this day in 1607, Capt. John Smith landed at Cape Henry, Va., with the first group of colonists who would establish a permanent English settlement in America.

On this date:

In 1785, the American naturalist and artist John James Audubon was born in Haiti.

In 1865, Abraham Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was captured on a farm near Port Royal, Va.

In 1925, Paul von Hindenberg was elected president of Germany.

In 1954, it was announced that 900,000 American children would receive injections in a nationwide test of Salk antipolio vaccine.

In 1964, the African nations of Tanganyika and Zanzibar merged, forming Tanzania.

Ten years ago: A sidewinder missile, launched by a U.S. jet, shot down the first Communist MIG21 of the Vietnamese war.

Five years ago: A presidential commission recommended that Communist China be admitted into the United Nations, with Nationalist China retaining its membership.

One year ago: Tens of thousands of labor union members marched and rallied in Washington, urging government action to provide more jobs.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Carol Burnett is 42. Writer Bruce Jay Friedman is 46.

Thought for today: We must not, in opening our schools to everyone, confuse the idea that all should have equal chance with the notion that all have equal endowments — Adlai Stevenson, 1900-1965.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Congress acted on petitions arising from reverses in the Northern campaign. One general was advanced $200 because of a lack of money.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have a small growth in the middle of my forehead. I have been told that this should be biopsied at some future time. I am petrified because I know that a biopsy is done for a cancerous condition. The doctor told me that there was no urgency about getting this done so I am confused.

Mrs. E. Y., Iowa

Dear Mrs. Y.:

Many patients react as you do to the word "biopsy" and associate it with cancer. There is absolutely no relationship between the two.

The word "biopsy" comes from the Greek "bíos," meaning "life," and "opsis," meaning "vision."

"Biopsy" is simply the removal of a small piece of tissue for study under the microscope to positively establish a diagnosis.

The tissue that is removed is sent to a laboratory where it is imbedded in a paraffin block. It is then cut into sections so thin that they are barely visible. These sections are stained and examined for the nature of the cells and for any change that may have occurred within them.

A pathologist is a highly trained specialist who determines the condition of the tissue and makes his recommendation for treatment to the doctor.

That is a "biopsy." Biopsies are performed for many reasons other than cancerous investigation.

The fact that your doctor feels that there is no urgency to biopsy the growth on your forehead should give you added assurance that he is not concerned about the condition. My personal feeling in such a matter is that the sooner you have this study made, the sooner you will be relieved of unnecessary fear.

Is there any way that I can get a list of the plastic surgeons in my state? I am considering having the bags under my eyes removed.

Miss D. W., N.M.

Dear Miss W.:

There are directories of medical specialists in all fields. They list the names, the qualifications, the training and the hospital affiliation of each specialist.

Undoubtedly, you would find a capable surgeon in this way. I do not recommend this way of choosing a surgeon.

Your own doctor is acquainted with specialists in all fields. With his direction you can find the ideal plastic surgeon to perform your operation.

Russian Mom Awaits Birth Of Grandchild

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — "It is a miracle, a miracle. Soon I will be a grandmother," said Zoya Fyodorova after she arrived here at the home of her daughter Victoria.

The Russian actress, 64, was tired but radiant Friday night after an emotional arrival at Kennedy Airport in New York with Victoria, who was born of a World War II romance with an American naval officer.

Victoria and her mother had been apart for more than a year, ever since Victoria came to the United States to meet the father she had never known, retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate of Orange Park, Fla.

Last June, Victoria married airline pilot Frederick Pouy, an American, and remained in the United States.

They are expecting their first child May 1.

In an interview conducted in Russian, Miss Fyodorova said she had no plans to see Tate, who is married, 76 years old and suffering from a heart ailment.

"It was so long ago — he has his own life now. And really, with the child and all the excitement I have not thought much about it. But I wish him well," she said.

The grandmother-to-be last saw Tate in May 1945, the night Victoria was conceived. Their love affair angered Soviet officials and resulted in expulsion from the Soviet Union for Tate, then a naval officer attached to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, and 8½ years in prison for Miss Fyodorova.

Victoria was not told until she was 16 that her father was an American and not a Russian pilot killed in the war. Irene Kirk, an American friend of Victoria's, located Tate after searching for several years.

Tate said last week that he does not intend to see Miss Fyodorova. "I don't think it has anything to do with me," he said.

Miss Fyodorova applied for her tourist visa six months ago when she first learned her daughter was pregnant. She learned last Tuesday, while on a concert tour in southern Russia, that her visa had been approved.

"I am busy with my work in Russia, but I am also lonely without my daughter. It is wonderful to be here, wonderful," she said. She added that she would return to the Soviet Union when her three-month visa expires.

As she surveyed the Pouys' home — and the many bouquets she had received — Miss Fyodorova said "My daughter looks beautiful, as always. And Fred, I love him already as a son."

Miss Fyodorova said she hopes her grandchild "is honest, kind and happy and loves her grandmother Zoya."

Walters Replacement Unknown

NEW YORK (AP) — Who will replace Barbara Walters on NBC's "Today" show? NBC News chief Richard C. Wald, who'll do the hiring, says even he doesn't know yet.

"I've spoken to five women today and every one of them is convinced she's the one," Wald said Friday. He declined to say who they are but said other prospects also are being considered.

Wald said Miss Walters, who is leaving NBC for ABC and a contract reportedly offering her $1 million a year for five years, will be staying on "Today" for the time being while NBC assesses the situation.

Meanwhile, industry speculation about her successor grew.

Among those mentioned in the speculation were New York City's former consumer affairs chief and former Miss America, Bess Myerson; actress-photographer Candice Bergen, who has made several "Today" appearances; and Betty Furness, a former Westinghouse products spokeswoman turned consumer activist.

Miss Furness is currently consumer affairs director for NBC-owned WNBC-TV.

"I've been asked if I'd be agreeable to sitting in for Barbara and I said yes," said Miss Furness, who occasionally has filled in during Miss Walters' vacations.

But she said that was all that NBC executives had asked her. She said they didn't tell her when she'd start filling in for Miss Walters or how long her "Today" fill-in stint might last.

Ohio Senate Report

By OAKLEY C. COLLINS
17th District Senator

The Ohio Senate last week passed a bill to preserve Ohio's historic archeological sites, particularly Indian mounds. H.B. 418 would allow the owner of land containing an historical archeological site to register that land with the Ohio Historical Society (OHS). Only registered mounds could be explored, and then only under OHS rules and supervision. Later owners of registered sites could terminate the registration status.

Unauthorized disturbing of protected archeological sites or sale of skeletal remains would be a second degree misdemeanor.

Other Senate action changes Ohio's Retail Installment Sales Act, so that buyers will not have to make installment payments on defective merchandise. Under current law, if the holder of an installment contract you have signed sells that contract to a third party and the merchandise purchased doesn't work, the contract holder can still legally demand payment from you. Either the seller or new contract holder is supposed to notify the buyer to notify the "holder in due course" there is some problem with the merchandise. The new law says the buyer can stop payment against a later contract holder the same as against the seller.

The House approved Senate changes in two election law changes. H.B. 56 establishes voter registration in every Ohio county by November 1977, extends the periods you can stay registered without voting from 2 to 4 years, and requires boards of elections to run registration drives and remain open 40 hours per week.

The purpose of voter registration is to prevent vote fraud. Required registration will help prevent fraud, but extending the time people can be registered without voting will allow fraud.

If a person does not vote for 2 years the county board of elections sends a postcard reminder to his/her last known address. A non-voter can stay

Klansman Faces Charge

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Louisville, Ky. man will appear in court May 7 charged with two counts of aggravated menacing after a pair of black bus drivers said he pulled a gun on them on a bus chartered by the Ku Klux Klan.

Clarence McNear, 43, Pleasure Ridge, Ky., a Louisville suburb, remained free today on $1,000 bond.

The Greyhound Bus Co. vehicle was chartered by the Klan in Louisville, Ky. The bus' 25 passengers were en route to Columbus, Ohio, to join a caravan headed for an antibusing rally in Washington, D.C. Saturday.

The incident occurred Friday night after the two black drivers were assigned to the bus at the Greyhound terminal in Cincinnati. The charges against McNear resulted from affidavits filed by James Steward and Eugene Beasley, both of Columbus, Ohio.

The drivers told police passengers protested their assignment to drive the bus to Columbus and accused Greyhound of sending the second driver along for a free ride at the expense of those who chartered the bus.

The pair said a dispute broke out when passengers demanded one of the drivers leave the bus.

War Planning Said Necessary

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "We're in the age of the 'come-as-you-are war' and national security demands planning now, Lt. Gen. George Rhodes told an audience here Saturday.

Speaking to members of the Dayton Chapter of the National Security Industrial association and the Wright Memorial chapter of the Air Force Association, Rhodes said the future of America demands more public awareness of the ever-expanding military and industrial strength of the Soviet Union.

The Soviets lead the United States in number of ICBMs, submarine-launched ballistic missiles, military manpower and per cent of the gross national product dedicated to defense spending, the three-star general said.

Rhodes, vice commander of Air Force Logistics, indicated that current budget trends have damaged America's military power and ability to meet the challenge of modern warfare.

Bergman Arrives In Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Film director Ingmar Bergman, looking for a place to continue his work and his life, is in Hollywood to discuss his plans after leaving Sweden in anger.

"I improvise from day to day," Bergman said on his arrival Sunday. Asked where he will settle, he said, "All I know is I am meeting Monday with Dino De Laurentiis; I have a very good relationship with Mr. De Laurentiis."

But when a woman at the airport asked, "Why don't you settle in America?" he replied, "I don't know. Perhaps tomorrow I will decide to stay."

De Laurentiis was Bergman's producer for the American release of "Face to Face," the latest in the filmmaker's explorations of human relationships.

Bergman, 57, seemed jovial and shook hands all around as he arrived here with his wife. A severe depression had settled on the director after he was charged with tax fraud by the Swedish government last January.

Bergman was cleared of the fraud charges, but his back taxes are still in question and he decided to abandon Sweden, leaving his wealth behind.

In a bitter open letter, he accused tax officials of blackmail and said he had been "attacked and humiliated by a special kind of bureaucracy that grows like a galloping cancer."

That subject was closed to discussion as Bergman reluctantly spoke with reporters. "I made a clean cut and I had to make a clean cut," he said.

Besides the United States, Italy and France have been mentioned in speculation about Bergman's new home.

Bergman said he might meet in June with Italian filmmaker Federico Fellini, whom he greatly admires.

It has been reported that Bergman will make three films with De Laurentiis, beginning next fall in Germany, but the director would not discuss any particular plans.

Most State Cities Taxing Income

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thirty years after the first municipal income tax was imposed, 215 of the state's 232 cities and 174 villages rely on a local levy for government operations.

"Since 1966," the Ohio Public Expenditure Council reports, "there has been a dramatic increase in the number of Ohio cities and villages imposing a municipal income tax."

Of the 389 local tax levies in existence, the council says 244 have been enacted in the last 10 years.

Don't look for the local income tax to go away either. It is the "financial mainstay of many Ohio cities and villages," according to the council, an independent research group.

And a House Ways and Means subcommittee is studying legislation that would extend taxing powers to counties and school districts. Only municipalities have such local authority under current law.

In 1974, $471.9 million municipal income tax dollars were collected, a 10.8 per cent increase over the previous year.

"This increase exceeded the $34.4 million increase in total property taxes levied for county, township and municipal government during the corresponding period," the researchers note. Property taxes are the main source of revenue for public schools.

Local tax rates range from a low of ¼ of 1 per cent to 2 per cent.

Fifty-five per cent of the local income tax money was generated in Ohio's 10 largest cities. Cincinnati, with a 2 per cent rate, led the way in 1974 with $57.8 million in tax revenue, the only top 10 city bringing in more than $100 per capita. Springfield also taxed at 2 per cent, but the much smaller city collected only $5.4 million.

Cleveland and Parma boasted 1 per cent rates, the lowest among big cities. Cleveland, however, was third in actual tax dollars realized with $50.2 million.

Columbus, Toledo, Akron, Canton and Youngstown all tax at 1½ per cent. Dayton is at 1¾.

"On a statewide basis, 25 (smaller) municipalities had per capita income tax collections of $100 to $200," the council says.

"It all began 30 years ago," the watchdog tax group reported. "Toledo, in 1946, was the first Ohio municipality to levy an income tax."

A piece of the energy puzzle.

Inflation: enemy at sea.

We all know about inflation. Everything costs more than it did five years ago . . . or two years ago.

Still, there are some things we can't do without. Inflation or no, we've got to go where the natural gas is . . . like way out in the Gulf of Mexico.

For example: The rig Sedneth I is drilling for natural gas 100 miles off the Texas coast in 500 feet of water. Out there, the physical problems alone spell high stakes. But look what inflation is doing:

	1967	1976
Rig construction cost	$14,000,000	$30,000,000
Rental rate per day	15,000	25,000

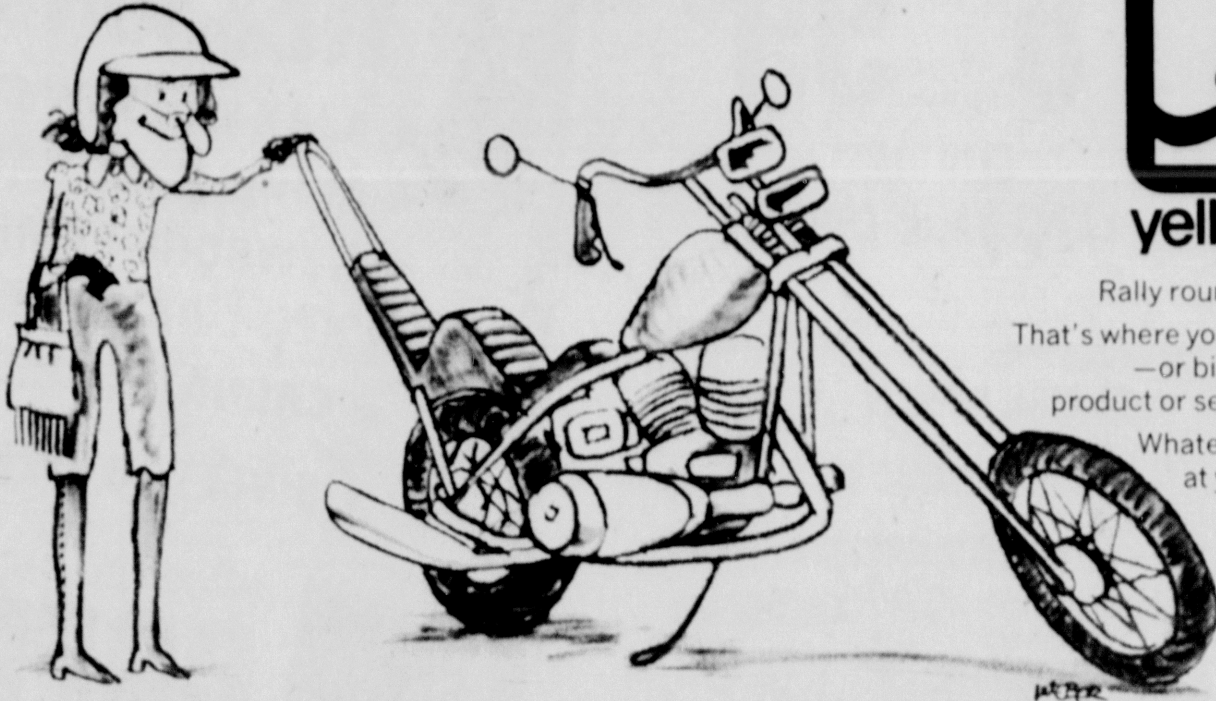

The numbers are big. Here's an example that's easier to grasp. Common 9½" well casing (pipe) cost $9 a foot six years ago. Today it costs $19 a foot! At an average depth of 11,000 feet, this means $110,000 more per well.

If gas is found out there, it'll take four to six years, working around the clock, before the gas can be delivered to your home. If inflation isn't brought under control, think what six years will do to our gas bills.

Worse yet, think of the cost of going without natural gas.

Miss Martha Sue Corcoran Bride Of Dwight Eylar Beery

MR. AND MRS. DWIGHT EYLAR BEERY

The wedding of Miss Martha Sue Corcoran and Mr. Dwight Eylar Beery took place 2:30 p.m., April 10, in Kingston United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Pearl Casto officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with a sunburst arrangement of white mums and baby's breath, banked with potted palms. The two candelabra were accented with palm leaves and white satin bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Willis F. Corcoran, Route 1, Chillicothe, and the late Mr. Willis F. Corcoran. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Betty Beery, Route 1, Frankfort. Mrs. Carol Hoenstein, organist, and Mrs. Dennis Zeigler, vocalist, presented a program of pre-nuptial music.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and brother, Mr. Andrew Corcoran. She was attired in a white full length organza gown trimmed with Venice lace. The fitted bodice with a natural waistline and V-neckline was accented with lace. Bishop sleeves ended in Venice lace cuffs. The hemline and chapel train of the full skirt was bordered with matching lace. The fingertip illusion veil, bordered with lace, was held in place by a profile cap on Venice lace with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley, and miniature white carnations, accented with camellia foliage, and tufts and streamers of white satin.

The bride wore an heirloom brooch which was worn by her mother and sister at their weddings. She also carried a 103 year-old lace handkerchief which had been carried by her mother and maternal great-grandmother at their weddings.

Mrs. Tom Harp, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. Robert Sharp was bridesmatron. They were dressed in identical Nile green knit dresses with empire waistlines, V-necklines with inset ruffles and bishop sleeves. They wore Juliet caps of Venice lace and pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride. They carried colonial bouquets of white roses and mint green carnations accented with camellia foliage and white satin tufts and streamers.

Mr. Michael Beery served his brother as best man. Ushers were Mr. Roger Beery, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Tom Harp and Mr. Jack Hirsch.

A reception in the social room of the church immediately followed the ceremony. Hostesses were Mrs. Michael Beery, Mrs. Roger Beery, Mrs. Wendell Wagner and Mrs. Mark Anderson, Miss Chris Beery, niece of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Detroit Faces Financial Woes

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit, the nation's fifth largest city, is second only to New York City in the financial problems it is facing, but it is unlikely that the Motor City will find itself in as much money trouble as the Big Apple.

City officials and civic leaders are quick to point out that the problems are different. The Detroit situation suggests that while America's urban centers face complex fiscal problems, it is unlikely that any other city will go the route of New York in the near future.

Tough Michigan laws make it practically impossible for Detroit to borrow its way into trouble the way New York did. Also, default on bonds and notes is nearly impossible.

"Whatever happens, we will not go the route of New York City," said Detroit's Mayor Coleman A. Young as he surveyed this city's struggle against fiscal disaster.

Nonetheless, he and other city officials describe the city's problems as critical.

Detroit became one of America's most financially-plagued cities because:

—Its unemployment rate is 17.5 per cent, the highest of any major U.S. city. Its jobless rate has been the worst in the country throughout the 1970s.

—As in New York, and other older cities, businesses and skilled workers have fled Detroit's center city in the past decade. Left behind are half of Michigan's elderly — 200,000 persons over 65. About 15 per cent of the city's families live under the poverty line.

—Detroit's population has declined by 20 per cent in 20 years, from about 1.85 million to 1.5 million.

—The city's mainstay, the auto industry, has perked up in recent months after its deep slump, but many of those jobs have left the inner city for the suburbs. Many auto related businesses have gone bankrupt. There are no firm figures on the relationship between the auto industry and the city, but some city experts estimate the automobile accounts for half the city's total employment.

—The city's budget has grown from $322.2 million in 1958-59 to a current $808.7 million, a far smaller percentage increase than New York City, where the budget grew in the same period from $2.2 billion to a present $12.7 billion.

All this has left Detroit with a rapidly dwindling tax base unable to fund services for residents badly in need of them.

"I will not try to kid you," Young told the Detroit Economic Club recently. "Detroit is not feeling the (economic) upswing being felt in other parts of the nation."

In the past four years, city tax revenues increased by only 16 per cent, while the city's expense budget grew by nearly one-third, from $622 million in 1972 to the current $808.7 million.

The city has found itself unable to balance its $808.7 million budget this fiscal year without massive layoffs and service cuts.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Woman Irked By Beau's Nosy Habits

DEAR ABBY: Something bothers me, and I would like your opinion and the opinion of others who have dealt with this problem.

Is it considered proper to smell food that is served to you before eating it? I am seriously considering marrying a man who does this, and I find it extremely irritating and embarrassing. He smells the food in the finest restaurants, at the home of friends and even in my home. It's not just a quick sniff—he puts his nose right down near the food and smells it thoroughly.

We are both in our late 50s and have been married before. Outside of this one fault, he is intelligent, charming and delightful company. But I'm not sure I could sit down for three meals a day with a man who has this disgusting habit. Or am I too picky?

PICKY ME

DEAR PICKY: Diplomatically tell the gentleman that his habit bothers you and suggest that he be less obvious about it. Don't insist that he drop the habit unless you want to drop HIM. Old habits die hard.

DEAR ABBY: Dad and us kids want to get Mom a "mother's bracelet" for Mother's Day. It will have a charm with each of her children's name and birth date engraved on it.

Last year my oldest brother died, and I wonder if we should include his name and birth date. He was a very important part of our family, even though he was mentally retarded.

Do you think it would make Mom sad to have his charm on her bracelet? We don't want to make her unhappy but we don't want her to think we have forgotten him. Thank you.

MOM'S KIDS

DEAR KIDS: Include a charm for your oldest brother. I think your mom would appreciate it. You are very loving and thoughtful children to consider it.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I disagree on something and hope you can settle it.

Is it all right to tell a hostess to please put the dogs and cats out of sight during dinner?

The situation is as follows: My wife's mother has two dogs and three cats who have the run of the house. I don't mind pets if they are clean-looking and don't stay under my feet all the time. My mother-in-law's pets are always on her lap. She feeds them while she eats and serves others, which spoils my appetite.

Also, one dog is part St. Bernard, and he drools and slobbers all the time, which also isn't very appetizing. Plus the cats seem to have chronic eczema, and their visible sores turn my stomach.

My wife says Mom's pets are like her "children," and as guests, we should look the other way and not say anything.

I say, I should politely ask Mom to please put the pets in another room while we're eating.

What do you say?

WEAK STOMACH

DEAR WEAK: If your description of the pets is accurate, I'm with you all the way!

Office Managers To Attend Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 50 district and local employment office managers from southern and central Ohio are expected to attend a two-day workshop May 3-4 sponsored by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services.

Albert G. Giles, bureau administrator, said the workshop theme is Public Information and Media Relations with Hugh DeMoss, news director WCMH, Channel 4, one of the featured speakers. Others are Bill Patterson, news director WTVN Radio and Duane St. Clair, metro city editor of the Columbus Dispatch.

Another two-day workshop will be held in Cleveland, May 6-7, for northern area district and local office managers from OBES.

It has been estimated that if motor vehicle travel continues to increase at its present rate, by 1990 vehicles will be covering some two trillion miles annually.

Reed To Retire From Gas Firm

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Joe E. Reed has announced he will retire May 1 as president and general manager of West Ohio Gas Co.

Reed has been president and general manager for 21 years.

The utility serves more than 54,000 industrial and residential gas customers in 33 northwestern Ohio communities.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Got a gripe? Now more than ever, there is someone out there willing to listen. As more Americans speak up for their rights, more government departments and private businesses have learned that the complaining consumer has a loud voice.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Fed up with products that don't produce and services that don't serve, Americans have learned that it pays to complain.

No one keeps statistics on the number of complaints received by private industry and government agencies. It would be impossible because there are so many overlapping departments, bureaus and offices and the number is growing steadily.

Five years ago, for example, there were nine consumer agencies at the state level, according to the Office of Consumer Affairs of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Today there are 135.

Dorothy Burkhardt who heads the complaint division of the federal consumer affairs unit said her office alone received almost 27,000 complaints in the first 11 months of 1975, compared to 24,000 complaints in all of 1974. A 1975 study by the Office of Consumer Affairs showed that 15 federal agencies — a relatively small section of Washington's bureaucracy — spent $6.4 million annually answering complaints.

There are signs on all sides that consumers are more aware of their rights and less hesitant about demanding them. The same person who would have shrugged and said "chalk it up to experience," when confronted with a faulty product five years ago, is writing to the company president today.

"People are more ready to complain to all institutions," said E. Patrick McGuire, senior research analyst at the Conference Board, a New York-based nonprofit business group.

"They expect more of products and services ... They are more cynical of companies' attempts to redress their grievances."

Robert Sable, an attorney with the National Consumer Law Center in Boston, said: "There is substantially more consumer litigation," partly because consumers have more legal rights than they used to. "There is a whole host of new consumer laws," he said, citing legislation involving interest rates, warranties and credit. "Ten years ago, there wasn't a whole lot an aggrieved consumer could do except make a stink."

No one knows just when Americans started thinking of themselves as "consumers." The late President John F. Kennedy set up a Consumer Advisory Council in 1963 and listed four basic consumer rights: the right to be heard, the right to a choice, the right to be protected against unsafe products and the right to a response to a legitimate complaint.

Many people believe the real consumer drive started in 1966 with Ralph Nader and his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed." Nader's disclosure, at a Senate hearing, that General Motors Corp. had private detectives investigate him because of his crusade against the safety record of the Corvair, drew wide publicity and called attention to consumerism as a cause.

By 1971, "Nader's Raiders," as his followers were dubbed, had formed groups to study — and change — laws and regulations on everything from food additives to pollution controls. Today, Nader's organizations in Washington and Nader-spawned public interest research groups — PIRGS — across the country are involved in just about every facet of American life.

The individual citizen who wants to complain has more outlets for his anger. There are almost 50 complaint agencies for federal departments and more than 225 county and city consumer offices.

The government publishes a 39-page "Guide to Federal Consumer Services," with information on where to go with questions and complaints about everything from advertising to work regulations. The booklet is available free of charge from Consumer Information Center, Dept. 6, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

On the business front, some 500 companies have consumer affairs units. The Better Business Bureau has expanded its complaint-handling mechanism, introducing an arbitration program that has grown from three cities in 1971 to about 100 today. And volunteer groups and news media "action line" programs are ready to tackle local problems.

McGuire said the surge in complaints "began long before the recession" that prompted concern over money. "It began when people learned there's a response."

Previously, he said, the East and West coasts were "the most fertile field for complaints." In between was "a desert — or an oasis," depending on your viewpoint.

McGuire said that Middle America has joined the complaint parade. "It is no longer considered ill-mannered or unpleasant." People boast of their victories at cocktail parties.

Complaints still are most prevalent among the middle and upper-middle income groups, McGuire said. These are the people who have the knowledge, the time and the determination to complain.

"It hasn't trickled down to the ghetto yet," he said. "When it does, you'll have an avalanche of complaints" because there are so many people involved.

The typical complainant on a nationwide basis, McGuire said, has two or more years of college, is over 30, "is more likely to be WASP than ethnic" and is in a managerial or semiprofessional job.

If the item involved cost less than $100 — food, clothing or small appliances — the complainant is likely to be a woman, McGuire said. If it cost more than $100, the complainant is probably a man.

Consumer agencies say they are solving more problems than ever before.

The Office of Consumer Protection of the Wisconsin Department of Justice received 5,780 complaints in 1971 and recovered about $214,000 for consumers in court judgments and informal settlements.

Last year, the office received 14,678 complaints and recovered almost $675,000, an increase of about 154 per cent in the number of complaints and 215 per cent in the amount of money recovered.

Bob Tuttle, statistician for the National Council of Better Business Bureaus, said local groups received over 6½ million calls of all types last year. Thirteen per cent were complaints. The rest of the callers wanted information only.

The bureaus get two kinds of complaints: formal protests that are followed up and informal gripes on which no action is taken. The number of overall complaints increased steadily in the late 1960s and early 1970's, from 324,000 in 1966 to almost 1.5 million in 1973.

The trend was reversed in 1974 and by 1975 the number of complaints — formal and informal — was down to 846,000.

The decline does not necessarily mean that people are complaining less, although Tuttle said he hoped it indicated greater customer satisfaction. Other factors causing the decrease include the sales slump of 1975, Tuttle said. People bought less and therefore had fewer new products to complain about.

The increased availability of complaint outlets also contributes to a drop in the number of complaints received by any one agency.

What are people complaining about? The Office of Consumer Affairs, in a report on complaints to state and local agencies, said automobiles are the most common focus of dissatisfaction. Automobile gripes accounted for 18 per cent of all complaints in 1974. Home repairs were the second most common area of dissatisfaction, representing 11 per cent of all complaints in 1974.

The Better Business Bureaus statistics showed mail order businesses accounted for 15.3 per cent of all complaints in 1975. Automobiles were second with 5.9 per cent of all complaints.

Big Grain Harvest Would Slow Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is tentatively projecting a huge 1976 grain harvest that could help slow anticipated increases in the price of food in the coming year and a half.

The Department's Outlook and Situation Board said Friday the 1976 wheat crop could turn out to be some 2 billion bushels, second only to last year's record crop of 2.1 billion bushels and that a record corn crop of nearly 6.4 billion bushels is a possibility.

Bumper grain production last year contributed significantly to a slowdown in retail food prices, department experts say. Last year's record corn crop of 5.8 billion bushels has meant reduced feed costs for livestock producers, triggering a larger production and lower consumer prices for grain-fed beef, pork, poultry and dairy products.

But there is new evidence that retail food prices, after sagging in recent months, are going to start rising again. The main reason is that supermarket beef prices, which figure heavily in family grocery bills, are beginning to climb or will climb in the near future.

Retail food prices dropped during the first three months of this year, mainly because of substantial declines in meat prices. Farmers have borne the brunt of this, receiving lower prices for meat animals, particularly cattle.

But prices of live cattle have rebounded sharply the past month. Wholesale prices have shot up and experts say those increases are bound to be felt at retail meat counters this spring.

According to the Agriculture Department, the price of choice-grade steers, which produce the tenderest cuts, jumped more than 26 per cent from mid-March to mid-April and wholesale beef carcasses rose 22.6 per cent during the same period.

Whether the full increase at that level will be passed on the consumers is hard to determine, department experts said. Middlemen have had wide price margins between what they pay producers for live cattle and what they charge consumers for beef at retail stores, and part of the gains may be absorbed by them.

Gullett, Reds Humble Montreal, 7-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Lefthander Don Gullett complained that his fastball was lacking, but the stuff he had was good enough to stifle the Expos for six innings as the Cincinnati Reds humbled Montreal 7-0 Sunday.

"It gives me confidence that I can go out there without my real good stuff and still pitch a decent game," said Gullett, 1-0, after giving up five hits in his first start and second appearance of the year.

"I'll be better when my fastball comes around. I went down to the bullpen afterwards to work on it and threw about 20 pitches, about another inning's worth."

Pat Darcy, a right-hander, checked the Expos on two hits through the last three innings to record his first save and share the shutout.

Gullett missed two months of last season with a broken thumb suffered in a game against Atlanta Braves, and the time on the disabled list probably cost him his first 20-victory season. He returned to the lineup Aug. 18 and ended up at 15-4 for a .789 winning percentage that led the league.

"I wasn't really consistent with my fastball the way I wanted," Gullett said after the Reds beat the Expos for the second straight day to win a three-game series. "I had good location, though, and that's what I was happy about—that and some good off-speed stuff."

Manager Sparky Anderson was less enthusiastic, saying: "He didn't have anything. He was throwing some breaking stuff, but the big thing is he went six."

Montreal had a base runner in each inning, but only one got past second. Pete Mackanin slammed a one-out double and moved to third on a wild pitch in the fourth before he was stranded.

Cincinnati got home runs from Johnny Bench and Dave Concepcion, the later's a two-run shot in the fourth inning. Ken Griffey drove in two runs with a double and single, while Joe Morgan had a run-scoring double and Bench rapped an RBI single.

Steve Renko, 0-1, made his first start of the year for Montreal and was unimpressive, leaving after surrendering eight hits, including both Reds homers, in five innings. Don Stanhouse, who gave up the final Cincinnati run, and Dale Murray went two innings each in relief.

John Candelaria was in midseason form. He went a solid nine innings.

Candelaria, Pittsburgh's rangy young left-hander, stifled San Francisco on a measly two hits Sunday and — surprising even himself — shut out the Giants 3-0.

In Sunday's other National League games, New York beat Houston 4-2, St. Louis stifled San Diego 3-1, Atlanta edged Philadelphia 4-3 and Los Angeles defeated Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings.

Candelaria gave up only one legitimate hit, Willie Montanez' double in the fifth inning. The other was a first-inning fluke, when shortstop Frank Taveras lost Bobby Murcer's pop-up in the sun.

"Montanez hit a good pitch, a fastball inside," Candelaria conceded. And he admitted he didn't expect to be around at the end of the game. "I was surprised I could go nine. The cool weather at Candlestick helped."

The Pirates gave him all the help he needed with six hits and three runs in the fifth inning, starting with Willie Stargell's third homer of the year.

Mets 4, Astros 2

Houston's Joe Niekro wildpitched home New York's tiebreaking run in the eighth inning and Ron Hodges singled for another one, then Ken Sanders' who had replaced Mets' starter Jon Matlack in the seventh, made the runs stand up.

Cards 3, Padres 1

Willie Crawford drove in two runs for the Cardinals with a homer and a sacrifice fly, and John Curtis struggled through nine innings by scattering 10 San Diego hits for his first victory of the season.

St. Louis scored in the second when left fielder Johnny Grubb dropped Reggie Smith's fly ball for a three-base error and Crawford hit his fly ball. In the fifth, Crawford homered, Ron Fairly walked Don Kessinger doubled. Mike Ivie homered in the ninth for the Padres.

Braves 3, Phillies 2

Atlanta's Dave May hadn't had a hit all year — until Larry Cristenson tried to slip one too many fastballs past him. The results was a two-run homer in the sixth inning that beat the Phils.

Dodgers 5, Cubs 4

Los Angeles put together its first two-game winning streak of the young season — and it took an unearned run in the 10th inning to get it.

Ted Sizemore was safe when first baseman Andre Thornton juggled a throw by shortstop Dave Rosello. John Hale bunted him to second and he scored on Ron Cey's single to center field. Henry Cruz hit his first major league homer for the Dodgers, a three-run shot.

Fight Mars A's Cleveland Clash

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson was adamant, Chuck Tanner was innocent and Bert Campaneris was reticent.

The three were talking about a bench-clearing brawl and the incident that incited it in the sixth inning of Oakland's 9-1 victory over Cleveland Sunday.

In the only other American League game Sunday, Minnesota got a three-run homer from Larry Hise and defeated Baltimore 7-2. The Texas-Detroit, Kansas City-New York, Boston-Chicago and California-Milwaukee games were rained out.

Cleveland Manager Robinson referred to Campaneris, the A's veteran shortstop, when he said, "They can't hide him from us all year."

The incident that sparked that threat of retaliation came with Oakland holding a sevenrun lead and just after Cleveland scored its run with no outs in the sixth.

Cleveland third baseman Buddy Bell singled up the middle and Boog Powell followed with a grounder to second baseman Phil Garner. Campaneris took the toss, made his pivot on the base and his throw struck the sliding Bell in the right temple.

The two came up fighting and both benches cleared.

The trouble apparently began brewing the previous inning when Cleveland pitcher Jim Kern hit both Don Baylor and Campaneris with pitches, although Oakland Manager Tanner said, "I don't think they threw at Baylor when he got hit, or at Campy when he got it."

"I know Campy was trying to make the double play when Bell got hit," Tanner added. "He just didn't get down in time."

"I was just trying to make the double play, that's all," Campaneris said quietly. "But I know Robinson ordered him (Kern) to throw at me."

Robinson steamed when told about the statements by Campaneris and Tanner.

"On that play, he threw right down at Buddy," Robinson said. "He had no intention of throwing to first base. Then, to really show what a coward he is, he kicks the guy when he's down."

As for the charge he ordered Kern to throw at Campaneris, Robinson said, "The next time he plays us, he'll know he's been thrown at. If we're gonna intentionally hit someone, we'd hit (Joe) Rudi. He's the guy who's been hurting us."

Mike Torrez, 2-3, scattered five hits in eight innings and Glenn Abbott gave up just one hit in the ninth. Rudi supplied the muscle, hitting his second two-run homer against the Indians in two days.

Twins 7, Orioles 2

Tom Burgemeir, 1-0, relieved Twins starter Joe Decker in the first after he had walked four Orioles. He shut the door the rest of the way, with the exception of a fourth-inning homer by Doug Decinces that briefly tied the game at 2-2.

"I've never pitched that long ever in the major leagues," Burgemeir said. "But the weather was cool and I didn't throw a whole lot of pitches."

The loser was Baltimore ace Jim Palmer, 3-2, who said, "I just didn't make very good pitches."

Larry Ziegler Wins New Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A nasty, testing little three-foot putt on the final hole nailed down the victory for Larry Ziegler.

But the happy-go-lucky guy actually won the New Orleans Open with four strokes of the wedge earlier in the week.

"I chipped in four times for the week — twice on Thursday and twice on Saturday," Ziegler said after he'd holed that last tough putt Sunday for a 70 and a one-stroke decision over Victor Regalado.

"That's a difference of maybe eight strokes. That's what won the golf tournament. You can go for two months without chipping in, and then I do it four times in a week. Those four strokes were really the difference."

But those four strokes didn't ease the pressure of the last one.

Ziegler, who'd started the final round with a two-stroke lead, held the advantage throughout the warm, sunny day but saw it cut to a single shot by Regalado's six-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole.

He still led by one when he stood in the middle of the 18th green. Regalado had just finished his regulation, two-putt par and had his 13 under par total safely recorded.

Now Ziegler, a 10-year journeyman, needed to get down in two from 25 feet to score only his third victory.

He lagged up his first putt, and it stopped some three feet short.

"The crowd went, 'ohhhh, ahhh.' They were telling me something. They were telling me I'd left it short and I was in trouble, but, hell, I knew that," he said.

As he surveyed that tough one "my heart was in overtime," he said. "I just told myself, 'Go ahead and hit it — the worst you can do is miss it.'"

But Ziegler made it, finishing off a 274 total, 14 under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course. Regalado's closing 69 left him one stroke back at 275. British Open champion Tom Watson matched the course record with a 64 that lifted him into third place at 276. Watson, however, started the final round eight shots back and never really got in the title hunt.

Jack Nicklaus shot himself out of it early in the day. He flailed away to a double bogey seven — his third double bogey in nine holes, going back to Saturday's third round — was six shots back and never really recovered.

He finished with a 69 and 278 along

Stephenson Wins LPGA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — "I didn't like being four back," Jan Stephenson said. So she fired a four-under-par 68 Sunday to gain a four-stroke victory in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Birmingham Classic.

Miss Stephenson trailed Kathy Martin by four shots going into Sunday's final 18 holes of the 56-hole competition.

"I knew Kathy would play well and I'd have to be under par to win," Miss Stephenson said after she collected her $5,700 prize money. Her 13-under-par 203 was the best finish this year on the LPGA tour.

Miss Stephenson played well on the front nine. She put in a birdie on the fourth, an eagle on the sixth and another birdie on the seventh.

Honest Pleasure Arrives For Derby

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Honest Pleasure was the last of the eight probable starters to arrive at Churchill Downs for next Saturday's Kentucky Derby but is expected to be the first across the finish line for the first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

Honest Pleasure, owned by Bert Firestone, was vanned here Sunday from Keeneland where last Thursday he strengthened his favorite role by capturing the Blue Grass Stakes for his ninth straight triumph.

Experts figure the 1 1/4-mile Derby as a two-horse race with Bold Forbes, the Wood Memorial winner owned by E. Rodriguez Tizol of Puerto Rico, as the second choice.

Meantime, a surprise starter popped into the Derby picture Sunday when Amano was given the green light by owner James C. Irvin, a Louisville real estate broker. Amano, a 200-1 Derby shot when the winter book opened, rallied from last place in a four-horse field to win the Stepping Stone Purse as Churchill Downs opened its spring meeting.

"As things stand now, we're going to try it," trainer Jim Padgett, trainer of Amano, said. "I'm pretty good at handicapping the Derby. And in this one we've got two speed horses, Honest Pleasure and Bold Forbes.

"When that happens, one of them is going to kill the other off and a horse that can stay in there — and I've got no doubt that mine can — has a good chance," said Padgett.

Amano was 12th in the Arkansas Derby but has three victories, two seconds and two thirds in 10 starts this year. Larry Melancon, who rode Amano in the Stepping Stone, would ride again in the Derby. Amano was clocked in 1:24.4-5 over a fast track for the seven furlongs; more than three seconds off the stakes record.

Padgett is hoping Amano can duplicate the feat of Majestic Prince (1969) and Cannonade (1974) who won both the Stepping Stone and the Derby.

Owners of R.C. Krickit decided against shipping that colt here after a disappointing showing Saturday at Thistledown.

The remainder of the field for the Derby shaped up as E.C. Cashman's Elucationist, Elmendorf's Play The Red, C.R. Jarrell's Inca Roca, Entremont Stable's Cojak, and Balmak Stable's On The Sly. If eight go in the $125,000-added test for 3-year-olds, it would match the 1969 running as the smallest since Citation's big year in 1948.

Amateurs In Muirfield Event To Receive Famous Putter

An exact replica of Bobby Jones' famous putter, "Calamity Jane," will be presented to all amateur participants in the Pro Am preceding the inaugural Memorial Tournament, May 24-30, at Muirfield Village Golf Club, Dublin.

This unique memento of the tournament's first honoree is a hand-made copy of the two identical hickory-shafted blade putters used by Jones throughout his career. The original "Calamity Jane" is in The Trophy Room of the Augusta National Golf Club, home of the Masters Tournament founded by Jones following his retirement from tournament golf in 1930.

The replicas are exact to the last detail, including even the signature Jones burned into the wooden shaft of the original "Calamity Jane." They were specially made for the Memorial Tournament by Swiken of St. Andrews, Scotland, at the premises where the head of the original is believed to have been forged.

The replicas will be presented with wall mountings and commemorative plaques to enable them to be used decoratively in home or office. They are also suitable for play on the course, varying from modern putters only in the amount of loft they carry — essential in Jones' day for less-than-perfect greens.

The Pro Am, set for Tuesday, May 25, was sold out three weeks ago. A total of 52 pros and 208 amateurs will provide the excitement in the prelude of the four days of Memorial Tournament play. In addition to the greatest names in golf, the celebrity studied entry list will include Bob Hope, Jackie Gleason, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle, Efram Zimbalist and daredevil, Evel Knievel. "We are holding playing places for a couple of more celebrities who are hoping to be here between TV and filming schedules," said Tournament President Herb McDonald. "But, the amateur field is jammed," he added, "and we have a substantial waiting list developing."

U.S. Open Champion Lou Graham, veteran Bruce Crampton and promising Eddie Pearce from Florida were among those who accepted invitations to the Memorial Tournament.

Ninety-four ticket agencies, 77 in the greater Columbus area and 17 throughout central Ohio, opened this past week, according to Bob Murphy, Executive Director of the Memorial Tournament.

"We are now giving ticket buyers an opportunity to make arrangements for weekly tickets in the most convenient way possible," explained Murphy. "All our agencies can accept cash, checks or credit cards and complete the ticket order. All credentials, along with traffic routing and parking instructions, will be mailed the first week of May."

"We have had many requests about daily tickets," continued Murphy. "Our Executive Committee will set a firm policy on that before the end of the month. If available at all, daily tickets will be limited due to the heavy sale of the weekly 'All Tournament' tickets. Local golf fans should know that the weekly badges are entirely transferable. Our suggestion is that various groups join together in the purchase and use of the 'All Tournament' badges, since they are still available and represent such a saving over the cost of daily tickets, if and when they are put on sale. The weekly badge at $40.00 is a $29.00 saving over the total cost of daily tickets."

Tigers Split DH With Panthers

Circleville's reserve team split a double header at Miami Trace Saturday afternoon winning the first game 5-1 and losing to the Panthers in the second 11-10.

Rusty Holbrook hit a two run homer in the second inning of the first game as the Tigers plated three runs and put the game on ice.

Brian Fath and Alan Ranck each had a double in the contest.

Winning pitcher Brian Fath (3-0) allowed only four hits, walked three, and fanned seven.

Riley of the Panthers gave up 10 hits and five earned runs as he went all the way for the losers. He walked three and struck out four.

According to Tiger Coach Ty Ankrom, Riley had a 0.00 earned run average going into the game.

In the second game, Circleville built up a six run first inning lead only to watch it dwindle away as the Panthers scored two in the first, five in the fourth, one in the fifth and three in the sixth.

The Tigers rallied with four in the seventh but fell one run short.

Hennessey led the Panthers with a two-run homer in the first inning. Wilkins and Armentrout each cracked a double while Randy Speakman hit a double for the Tigers.

Losing pitcher Scott Sanders started for the Tigers. He fanned two and walked seven. Alan Ranck hurled relief, fanning two and walking four. Together they yielded eight hits.

Panther pitchers struck out 10 and walked nine. They gave up 10 hits.

Circleville had six errors while the Panthers had three.

The Tigers are 5-4 on the year and will travel to Chillicothe Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

Piranha Swim Team Opens Membership

The Circleville Piranha Swim Team, defending champions of the Mount Pleasant Swim League has opened up its membership for another week.

"We still need swimmers," head coach Jim Shea said, "if we are to successfully defend our league title. Normally, we open up membership to the team in early June, but this year it's now or wait until next January."

Shea said, "There are a number of age groups that need reinforcing. In the 10 and under girls, we need six swimmers. In the 11-12 girls we need three swimmers. In the 13-14 girls we need four swimmers. In the 15-18 girls we need three swimmers. In the 15-18 boys we need four swimmers."

"As is very clear," Coach Shea continued, "our weakness lies in the girls age groups. We need help in every age group of girls and in only one age group of boys."

Any swimmer interested in joining the team this year must do so before Saturday. All interested swimmers should contact Coach Shea at 474-3650 or 474-6242. Shea added, "We will not open up membership to the team again before next January."

Ohio Turns Back Hoosiers, 98-83

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Toledo University guard Larry Cole was voted most valuable player Saturday after tossing in 24 points and leading the Ohio All Stars to a 98-83 college basketball victory over the Indiana All Stars.

Cole's performance was credited by Ohio Coach Darrell Hedric as the most crucial element in the triumph. Hedric, of Miami University, also had high praise for the rebounding of 6-foot-9 Andre Richardson of Bowling Green.

Kentucky Tops Denver

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Bird Averitt's tonsils, believe it or not, may be the key factor when Kentucky and Denver collide Wednesday night in the seventh game of what has been a thrilling American Basketball Association playoff series.

With tonsillitis and a high temperature slowing him to a walk last week, Averitt was ineffective as Denver won two straight and jumped into a 3-2 lead.

But Averitt, although still under the weather, was sufficiently recovered Sunday to score 34 points as Kentucky edged Denver 119-115 in double overtime to square the series at 3-3.

The winner of Wednesday's final will meet New York in the best-of-seven championship series. New York earned its berth by defeating San Antonio 121-114 Saturday to win that semifinal series 4-3.

"I thought Bird rose to the occasion," said Kentucky Coach Hubie Brown, and made several difficult shots.

Flyers Top Toronto, 7-3

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The supernatural powers of hexes, pyramids and lucky ties were no match for good, solid all-around hockey. That's why the Boston Bruins and Philadelphia Flyers are headed for the National Hockey League's playoff semifinals and the Los Angeles Kings are skating into summer with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Bruins hadn't won a seven-game playoff series since 1941, when they beat Toronto in seven games and went on to win the Stanley Cup from the Detroit Red Wings. But in their seventh game against the Kings Sunday night, the natural talent of veteran Jean Ratelle and a 15-save shutout by Gilles Gilbert helped break the four-series, 35-year Boston hex.

The Maple Leafs had given praise to the mysterious plastic pyramids they had placed in the dressing room and arena after getting five goals from Darryl Sittler and beating Philadelphia 8-5 Thursday night to set up Sunday night's deciding contest. Sittler, who had worn his lucky tie to the rink and placed his sticks under a pyramid before the game Thursday, promised to do the same Sunday.

But after falling behind 2-1, the two-time defending champion Flyers roared back with four goals within 3:16 on their way to a 7-3 triumph over Toronto. Sittler — pyramids, lucky tie and all — didn't score at all.

Negotiations To Resume Today

CLEVELAND (AP) — After taking the weekend off to reassess the issues, rubber industry labor negotiators headed back to the bargaining table today for renewed efforts at ending a six-day-old United Rubber Workers strike against the industry's Big Four.

Meanwhile, the strike took on an international flavor, with the Japanese Rubber Workers threatening to strike and URW President Peter Bommarito meeting in Geneva with leaders of the six-million member International Federation of Chemical and General Workers Union.

The talks between URW and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. representatives were recessed Friday at the request of federal mediators, who called for reassessment of issues.

The URW has focused on Firestone as the most likely candidate for meeting pay increase demands totaling $5.50 an hour—about 42 per cent—over a three-year period, and talks with the other three major tire firms in three other cities have taken a back seat.

Firestone's pay hike offer stood at $1.15 an hour over the three years. Federal mediator Gayle Weinriter said there might be new economic offers in the talks resuming this afternoon.

URW leaders say they need the big jump to catch up and keep pace with auto workers. The average pay for the 60,000 URW members covered by contracts with the Big Four of the rubber industry was estimated by the union at $9.05 an hour.

Negotiations with Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. were located in Cincinnati, B.F. Goodrich Co. in Columbus and Uniroyal Inc. in New York.

The Geneva discussions concerned plans for an international boycott of Firestone products. Chemical workers' union leaders already have pledged support for the strike against Firestone and its subsidiaries.

Boycott picketing of Firestone products is set to start May 8 if no agreement is reached before then. URW leaders say boycotts will be held in seven U.S. cities—Akron and HISTORICAL SITE — The Buckeye Furnace restoration rises almost 75 ft. above the Jackson county countryside.

Buckeye Furnace Opens May 1

Buckeye Furnace, the Ohio Historical Society's newest restoration, will be opened to the public for the first time Saturday, May 1 at 10 a.m.

Located in eastern Jackson County, Buckeye Furnace is a complete reconstruction of a charcoal fed blast iron furnace of the Hanging Rock District. This district, made up of sections of southern Ohio and northern Kentucky, was once the site of many such furnaces in the second half of the 19th century. The area was rich in natural resources and provided all the basic ingredients for manufacturing iron.

Buckeye Furnace was built in 1851 and continued to produce iron ingots until 1894. The furnace closed in 1894 when the more economical coke-fired furnaces were beginning to handle most of the business in the industry.

All that remained of the original Buckeye Furnace complex when the Ohio Historical Society began the reconstruction was the huge 40 foot tall chimney. The complex now includes rebuilt engine and charcoal houses and charcoal and casting sheds. Graphic panels describe the operation of the furnace. The company store, where Buckeye Furnace employees once purchased most of their supplies, has also been reconstructed and will serve as a gift and information center.

Nature trails through the Jackson County countryside and picnic facilities will also be available for the use of visitors.

Buckeye Furnace is located ten miles east of Jackson, Ohio. The complex can be reached by taking SR 124 out of Jackson and then following the Buckeye Furnace signs.

The site will be open from May through October. Daily hours are from 10 to 6, Wednesday through Saturday, and from 1 to 6 on Sunday. Admission will be charged for adults and children 12 and under will be admitted free with their parents.

Socialists Win Vote In Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Socialist party stayed on top as returns were counted today from Portugal's first free parliamentary election in 50 years, but there was no chance of its getting the majority it sought in the new 263-seat parliament.

Socialist leader Mario Soares rejected overtures from the center and right to join in a coalition government. Other influential members of his party said such a coalition was inevitable.

The election outcome opened the way for the ouster of the Moscow-line Communists from the government of this member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for the first time since the military revolution two years ago.

With about 77 per cent of Sunday's votes tallied, the Socialists had 35.21 per cent of the vote, compared with 37.9 per cent in the election of the constituent assembly last year.

The centrist Popular Democrats were in second place with 23.87 per cent, compared with 26.4 per cent last year; and the Communists had 14.97 per cent, up slightly from 12.5 per cent.

The only big gainers were the conservatives of the Social Democratic Center. They had 15.32 per cent of the votes, double their showing last year, and nosed ahead of the Communists to take third place.

Vandals Break 14 Windows

Fourteen small windows at the State Highway Garage, 130 Highland Ave., were broken by vandals Sunday, according to a report taken by Circleville Police Sgt. Jim Francis.

Rocks from the N & W railroad tracks were apparently used to shatter the 12 by 15 inch windows, which are located on the west side of the garage.

Thieves took a 14 foot pole and 3 by 5 foot sign from in front of The Saddle Shop, 122 S. Court St.

The yellow sign had the words "Saddle Shop" printed in black letters on both sides. The letters were enclosed in a plastic case.

The sign and pole are valued at $500.

A 10-speed bicycle owned by Robin Yocum, 385 Cedar Heights Road, was taken from outside his house.

The bike is valued at $100.

Terry Cavinee, 344 E. Mill St., told police that vandals bent the windshield wipers on his car, broke the outside mirror, and snapped the radio antenna.

The incident occurred Friday or Saturday, he said.

Vandals cut several limbs off a small tree on land owned by James Meyer, 1261 Edgewood Dr.

The 10-foot tall tree is valued at $200.

Abuse Probe Hampered

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Efforts by a public interest group to investigate abuses by businesses will be seriously hampered by a funding handicap imposed by the Indiana University Board of Trustees, organization officials said.

University records show that support for the Indiana Public Interest Research Group (InPIRG) is down 50 per cent since 1973 when the school first provided students with a voluntary contribution system during registration for classes.

The board approved a new fee collection policy last December, thereby abolishing optional student contributions, because of conflict of interests, according to John Fitzgerald, chairman of the state InPIRG board of directors.

He said many trustees and IU administrators are associated with businesses under the group's critical eye.

InPIRG members said their 1973 fight against an Indiana Bell Telephone Co. rate hike request; their investigation of possible violations of the Federal Truth and Lending Act by Indiana banks and their criticism of utility company practices in 1974 contributed to the board's decision.

Fish and wild game were the chief foods of Ohio's pioneers, and later corn meal was added to the menu. If baked in an oven the corn product was called a "pone;" if baked on a board it took the name of "johnnycake," and balls of meal baked in ovens were called "corn dodgers."

This conservative gain was viewed as a backlash against the confused and ineffectual leftist provisional governments that have held office since the armed forces overthrew the Salazar-Caetano dictatorship two years ago.

The rest of the votes were scattered among 10 splinter parties. Final results were expected late today.

Francisco sa Carneiro, head of the Popular Democrats, and Diogo Freitas do Amaral, president of the Social Democratic Center, called on the Socialists to join them in a coalition. Soares rejected the center-right offer, and he also said an alliance with the Communists was out of the question. But pressure was building up within his own party to come to terms with the two other major antiCommunist parties.

Soares predicted before the election that the Socialists would get at least 42 per cent of the vote. He said if they could not govern alone, they would lead the opposition.

Observers said it would be difficult to put a coalition government together because of bitterness generated by the election campaign, during which at least five persons were killed.

"We have to be very careful because if we let the situation deteriorate, flying political sparks might still ignite a civil war," President Francisco da Costa Gomes warned.

The armed forces were on full alert during the voting, but no major violence was reported. More than 80 per cent of the 6.5 million eligible voters cast ballots, compared with 92 per cent in the constituent assembly election last year.

70 More Slain In Lebanon Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Right-wing Christian militiamen infiltrated leftist strongholds in Beirut's business and hotel district Sunday, touching off another battle to mar the 35th truce of the year-long civil war.

At least 70 persons were killed and 182 persons were wounded in gun battles and artillery exchanges through the day, security officials said.

A Moslem area near the Beirut airport was also shelled, and more fighting was reported in the mountains east of Beirut, police said.

The Moslems, now a 60 per cent majority in Lebanon, are fighting for a larger voice in the government, which has been dominated by the Christians since World War II.

Parliament Speaker Kamal Assaad announced that parliament will meet May 4 to choose a new president if security conditions permit. Christian President Suleiman Franjeh signed a constitutional amendment Saturday permitting election of his replacement five months before his term expires Sept. 23 instead of two months before.

The Moslems are demanding that Franjeh step aside for another Christian president who will carry out a Syrian plan for a 50-50 division of power between the Moslems and Christians. Since Lebanon became independent after World War II, the Christians have dominated the political and economic life of the country.

Kamal Jumblatt, the leader of the leftist Moslem forces, told reporters that Franjeh's delay in signing the constitutional amendment had cost 1,000 lives and "I hope his resignation will not cost another 1,000 lives."

Jumblatt claimed his Moslem forces and their Palestinian allies control more than 80 per cent of Lebanon and are setting up local administrative offices.

Leaders of the right-wing Phalange party, the largest group in the coalition of Christian forces opposing the Moslems, are also setting up a government in Christian areas north of Beirut.

In Cairo, the official Egyptian Middle East news agency said Syrian authorities had arrested 70 members of the Palestinian guerrilla organization Al Fatah. It gave no details, but Syrian President Hafez Assad is known to be at odds with Yasser Arafat, leader of Al Fatah and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

According to the Egyptian press, Assad has been trying to replace Arafat with Zuheir Mohsen, the leader of the Saika Palestinian guerrilla organization which Syria finances and controls.

Woman Hurt In Accident On Motorcycle

A Columbus woman was admitted to Riverside Hospital, Columbus, for treatment of internal injuries she suffered in a motorcycle accident 5:15 p.m. Saturday on Route 180 in Ross County, just south of the Pickaway County line.

Sandra Gould, 37, Columbus, was given emergency treatment at Berger Hospital before being admitted to the Columbus hospital for a lacerated liver and other internal injuries.

Jerry B. Davis, 36, Columbus, told deputies that he was teaching Ms. Gould to ride a motorcycle she owned. He was not on the bike when the accident occurred.

Ms. Gould apparently accelerated too quickly, causing her to lose control of the motorcycle and crash through a fence.

Bilingual Ballot Law Welcomed

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

The federal law requiring bilingual ballots has been welcomed in many Spanish-speaking areas, but when it comes to printing ballots in Indian languages, many election officials are in a quandary.

Chickahominy and Arikara are virtually extinct. Lumbee and Ojibway are unwritten languages. Cherokee, says one election official, "looks like a cross between hieroglyphics and Yiddish."

And in Hayward, Wis., city clerk Rolf Williamson said the Indians in surrounding Sawyer County "read English better than I do."

Hayward itself, population 1,600, has about six Indians but none speaks or writes an Indian language, Williamson said.

Nevertheless, Hayward was one of about 500 towns, cities and counties which have been told to come up with bilingual ballots and election materials.

The bilingual requirements are included in amendments to the Voting Rights Act. Congress passed the amendments last August in an attempt to make it easier for more Americans to vote. Last week, the Justice Department issued modifications of interim guidelines sent out last fall. The bilingual rules are to take effect after a 30-day period for public comment.

Some areas, even though census figures say they should use bilingual ballots, may be exempted on a common sense basis.

For instance:

Charles City County in Virginia was on the Justice Department's list. More than 5 per cent of the county's 6,200 residents are Chickahominy Indians, so theoretically it is subject to the amendments.

However, the Justice officials agreed with Virginia Atty. Gen. Andrew P. Miller that Chickahominy is a dead language, that all the Indians know English, that few if any know or read a word of Chickahominy, and that therefore bilingual ballots are not "sensible."

Justice Department attorney David Burns said the department's list of bilingual ballot areas was compiled on the basis of Census Bureau reports and failed to consider other conditions.

Ex-Con . . . Customers Paying For Utility Excess?

at Macon, but Pearson eluded it. Forty miles from Atlanta, in Jackson, Pearson lost control of the car and crashed.

He shot once at Mrs. Janda but missed, and she fooled him by playing dead, authorities said. Pearson then shot himself, but officers said he managed to fire a shot at them as they approached the car. Pearson was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Police said Pearson had two .38-caliber revolvers, and a .22-caliber pistol on him when he was stopped. Another pistol was found at one of the service stations.

Jacksonville police said Pearson was free on $2,500 bond after his arrest April 1 on charges of impersonating a police officer.

Gould said fingerprints also linked Pearson to a robbery last week at a Jacksonville grocery store where three people were killed and one wounded.

Gould said Pearson's criminal record also included charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny. Records show he served time in jail on a 1966 federal conviction for mail theft and forging government checks.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Energy crisis or not, some Ohio utilities appear to have overbuilt, and their customers are footing the bill, say two members of the Public Utility Commission of Ohio.

David C. Sweet and fellow commissioner Sally W. Bloomfield have sent a letter to the chairman of the state House-Senate Conference Committee considering new utility rate legislation pointing out the excess capacity.

Sweet released figures compiled by the utilities commission staff that show that Dayton Power & Light Co. customers paid at least $32.5 million in 1975 to support generating capacity not needed by the company.

Sweet said the figures, based on information filed by DP&L with the state Power Siting Commission, show that the utility had an available electric generating capacity of 2,551 megawatts in 1975. But its peak demand was only 1,705 megawatts or 76 per cent, which even with a 10 per cent reserve margin leaves DP&L with 23 per cent excess capacity, Sweet said. He said that excess cost consumers at least $32.5 million.

DP&L had the highest excess per cent of the electric companies examined by the commission, Sweet said. Others were Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. with an excess of 12 per cent and Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. with an excess of 13 per cent.

A spokesman for DP&L said the excess capacity resulted from unique circumstances beyond the company's control, such as the Arab Oil embargo which threw off previously reliable growth estimates by increasing costs and cutting demand. He said the company was cutting back on construction.

However in testimony before the commission last week, DP&L President Robert E. Frazier said that the company needs additional revenue to build new facilities to meet the energy demands of the 1980s.

He said the figures could damage DP&L's $30.3 million rate hike request now pending before the commission. Sweet said he will meet with the commission staff Wednesday to see whether the commission can reduce a rate request because of excess generating capacity.

Red China Uninterested In U.S. Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — China is not interested in buying U.S. weapons or forming any defense alliance with the United States, according to a congressional delegation just back from a week-long visit to China.

The group did not meet with Hua Kuo-feng, the new premier, but conferred for 90 minutes with Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao and Foreign Minister Shiao Kuan Hwa.

"They were not interested in a formal defense association with the United States," Rep. William Randall, D-Mo., said Sunday night. "They expressed no interest in acquiring either U.S. weapons or military technology."

In a telephone interview he said the Chinese believe they have "irreconcilable differences with Russia" and he added that officials stressed their determination to be "independent and self-reliant."

The delegation led by Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., returned Sunday from a trip undertaken at the invitation of the Chinese. Nine members of the House Armed Services and International Relations committees made the journey.

U.S. officials have speculated about giving military aid to China, former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger revealed recently, but never went beyond the speculative stage.

Schlesinger and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, generally regarded as the Senate's foremost authority on China, have said that military aid to China should not be rejected "out of hand."

Randall said the Chinese position seemed to be, "You go your way and we'll go ours." And he added: "I believe in their sincerity."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Someone may try to involve you in a personal problem. Steer clear of the situation — as your instinct probably warns.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Whatever your plans, take into account new trends and ideas, changing maneuvers to fit current situations.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Beneficent Mercury influences now heighten imagination and encourage your ingenious methods. Capitalize on ALL of your talents and you should do extremely well.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Especially favored now: conferences, making plans for the future, pursuits which stimulate the intellect.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Hold off expansion of activities until you make sure you are within safe limits, and can handle the "extras" without deserting primary interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Favorable stellar influences stimulate your ingenuity. Managing present situations cleverly will be wiser than reaching for "better prospects," however.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Pay no heed to glowing reports or sensational rumors — especially if finances are involved. Keep on an even keel and you should do well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Be ready to face competition. You usually enjoy the stimulation of this, but don't burn the candle at both ends in your desire to get ahead. Easy does it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): An associate will offer some unexpected assistance. Be receptive. The proffered help will be genuine, the motive sincere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Routine will probably bore you now, but don't idle time away. Get busy on one of your pet creative projects. Influences stimulate original ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you've been interested in a new project but have postponed taking action, NOW is the time! But be sure you have the know-how and enough data to go on.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): There are tendencies now to take off on tangents and to ease up in effort just when more persistence is needed. Don't fail yourself by yielding to such inclinations.

YOU BORN TODAY are meditative, scholarly, intuitive and extremely sensitive. This sensitivity works best in the field of healing, which is why so very many noted surgeons, physicians and nurses have been born under the Sign of Taurus. But it also gives you awareness in many other directions, such as invention, philosophy, writing and painting. You are also indomitable. In military and scientific affairs, for instance, you believe that the "impossible" can be done — and do it. The word "genius" best sums up the well-developed Taurus born on this date. Birthdate of Gen. U.S. Grant, 18th, Pres., U.S.A.: Samuel Morse, inventor (Morse code).

Driving on a road covered with wet leaves is like driving on a road with ball bearings and can be more treacherous than driving on a road covered with ice, says the National Automobile Club.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) —

Barbara Walters' acceptance of a contract reportedly paying her $1 million a year for five years to leave NBC and co-anchor the "ABC Evening News" and do other ABC projects is now overshadowed by a more interesting story.

Scott Mott, a 6-year-old, was offered $300,000 a year for 10 years to anchor the evening "Action News" program of WWWW-TV in Bumfudgeon, Fla.

If he takes the job, he'll not only be the first 6-year-old to anchor an evening news program in a minor market, he'll also be the highest-paid 6-year-old in the history of television news.

"Variety," the show-biz bible, summed it all up in a headline: "Mott Tot Hot."

Welby Tidball, the new general manager of WWWW-TV, declined to comment on what money was offered the Mott tot. "All I can say is that it's a substantial offer," he said.

The lad, who gained overnight stardom with an exclusive interview of Mason Reese, wasn't available for interviews. His secretary said he was out playing marbles and wouldn't be back this week.

The youth is being represented in talks with WWWW by two agents from the Monster Child Agency, a talent firm that represents top child stars as well as news personalities below the legal age.

Jack "Swift" Sprat, one of the agents, said he couldn't comment on the reported offer of WWWW to his client.

"I don't think it'd be appropriate or fair to Scott," he also declined to say if the Calvin Coolidge Elementary School, where Mott is finishing his first year, had offered to match WWWW's offer.

But a school spokesman said it's unlikely that would happen. "All we have to offer is peanut butter, books and recess," he quipped.

"All this talk about money is academic," grumbled WWWW's Tidball. "Scott Mott is a proven name, an anchorman you can trust. We feel people will believe what he says."

"And," he chuckled, "he might even boost our ratings. Don't forget also that anchor salaries right now are only a small percentage of our total operating overhead for news."

Tidball was asked why the station didn't reduce Mott's salary to, say $100,000 and use the remaining $200,000 to hire more reporters and cameramen to actually go out and cover the news.

"That's also academic," he said. "If Scotty accepts our offer, we'll have to let go all our reporters and cameramen to pay him."

That doesn't make sense, he was told.

"Yes, but blame it on the market place," he said. "Sure, salaries are high, but you have to pay to get the best talent."

A footnote: Shortly after this was written, young Scott Mott accepted the $300,000-a-year offer and made his debut as anchorman of WWWW's evening "Action News" program.

He seemed unusually poised for a 6-year-old. The only sign of nervousness came midway in the show, when he broke down, started crying and began a story on Angola by shouting, "I want my Mommy!"

Elks Sing At State Convention

The Elk Singers of Circleville gave two performances for the 78th Annual Ohio Elks Convention held in Cleveland, Ohio April 22 to April 24, where over 1,000 Elks and their ladies were in attendance.

The 30 member group under the direction of Terry Anderson sang at the Annual Memorial Service held on Saturday morning, and then presented a half hour show in the afternoon for over 400 Elks ladies where they received a standing ovation at the conclusion of the performance.

Dr. David Goldschmidt, past state president, hosted a reception for the singers immediately following their performance.

Several invitations were received for performances for later in the year. The Elks Singers sponsor the Night of Harmony held each fall to help support the music departments at the county high schools and also the cerebral Palsy Foundation.

Grad Night Scheduled At Kings Island

Singer Eric Carmen, one of the new major musical talents in America, and Brownsville Station rock and roll band will be featured entertainers at the 1976 Kings Island Grad Nite parties May 14 and 21.

Serving as emcee at the two concerts scheduled each night will be Wolfman Jack, internationally known radio disc jockey and host of the "Midnight Special" on NBC television.

Carmen's first single, "All By Myself," recently hit the number one spot on two national record charts.

His first album, entitled "Eric Carmen," was released last October on the Arista Records label.

Another song from the album, "Never Gonna Fall In Love Again," is currently high on the record charts.

First hit single for Brownsville Station was "Let Your Yeah Be Yeah" on the Big Tree Records label. It earned Top Ten status in a number of large cities and was followed by an album entitled "Yeah."

Brownsville Station provides a non-stop barrage of entertainment with its original music and optimum level of energy. The group includes three talented members: Cub Koda-guitar and vocals; Michael Lutz-bass and vocals; and Henry Weck-drums and vocals.

Kings Island Grad Nite parties are open only to high school graduating seniors and their dates. Hours of the parties are from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Tickets must be purchased in advance through high schools or parent-sponsored organizations. The minimum order is 25 tickets per school.

Deadline for ordering Grad Nite tickets is May 3. They will not be sold at Kings Island either May 14 or 21.

The dress code for Grad Nites is normal school attire with shirts and shoes mandatory.

The grad Nite parties were instituted by Kings Island to give high school graduates an opportunity to celebrate all night within the park. Each participating school sends two chaperones, who are admitted free.

Kings Island opened for preview weekends April 24 and will begin daily operation May 29. Kings Island is located on I-71 north of Cincinnati.

money I need to make my case in Pennsylvania."

"Well, of course," Jackson said. "He (Ford) doesn't want Ronald Reagan to get his matching funds, and the President has the most money."

Carter observed, "I'd like to blame President Ford for all we can, but it looks to me like the Congress is the one that hasn't acted."

Udall agreed that some Democrats may have gone along with a delay, hoping it would lead to a deadlocked convention that might open up a presidential draft for Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

But Udall insisted the chief culprit was Ford because he refused to tell the country he would sign a new campaign spending law expected to be passed this week.

Jackson, Udall and Carter continued their cross-state campaigning today — Jackson in Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Johnstown; Udall in Philadelphia, Erie, Johnstown and Pittsburgh; and Carter flying from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia.

Udall canceled all of his Sunday appearances after the ABC-TV telecast to work in a five-minute speech he planned for tonight on national television.

On "Issues and Answers," the candidates were asked who will win Tuesday's election.

Wallace: "I wish that the national news would indicate that I am a candidate.... I ran second here in 1972.... I want the people of Pennsylvania to know I am running, but I can make no prediction."

Udall: "I'm handicapped with money ... but we're going to do all right."

Jackson: "I feel I am going to win the delegate contest. The preferential contest, popularly referred to as a beauty contest ... is going to be close. I feel a surge in the last two or three days and I got a good chance of winning the beauty contest as well."

Carter: "We started out way behind in Pennsylvania.... I think most of the voters are for me. But there is a great deal of emphasis placed on machine politics in Pennsylvania.... If we have a good turnout I'll come in first. If we have a poor turnout then I may not."

There are eight candidates on the Democratic popularity ballot: Carter, Jackson, Udall, Wallace, anti-abortionist Ellen McCormack; Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma.

Pennsylvania will send 17 delegates to the Democratic convention. Voters will choose 134 Tuesday and another 44 will be chosen later by the party's state committee.

Court Eyes Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two schools in the Virginia suburbs of Washington are the center of a new racial integration controversy which could bring a Supreme Court ruling that private academies for whites only are illegal.

The court hears arguments today in two cases where two black children and their parents are claiming that private schools may not legally refuse to accept pupils simply because they are black.

According to a recent estimate, about 3,500 private academies now operate in the South, with a total enrollment of 750,000, or 10 per cent of the region's white school children.
